SUPREMACY HQ. ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, France, Oct. 12.—The German air force came out tonight 150 strong to join the defense of flaming Aachen. ME-109s and FW-190s caught many of our fighter bombers by surprise, but they fought back, some of them with a ton of bombs still attached to their wings. Twelve enemy aircraft were destroyed in the battle and four of ours are missing. After the battle American planes went on to drop their bombs on targets in Aachen. The Germans in the night also attempted to bomb American 1st army troop concentrations around Aachen. American anti-aircraft defenses brought down two German planes. Lt. Duane D. Int-Hout of Gardner, Ill., who piloted one of the planes which blasted Aachen, estimated that 85 per cent of the city is now destroyed or damaged. The opinion was expressed tonight that the Germans intend to make a last ditch stand in Aachen. Despite the damage to the city they are well dug in, even under the rubble, and heavy fighting is anticipated before the town falls.

WIN AACHEN SUBURB

LONDON, Oct. 13 (Friday).—(AP)—American infantry yesterday wrested Schlachthof (slaughterhouse), a northeastern suburb, from the stand and the garrison of Aachen and moved for the final assault on that ancient invasion gateway to Germany. Out of the smoking, rain drenched ruins that was Aachen straggled a few soldiers and civilians, unwilling to stand longer with the 1,500 of the garrison who since noon on Wednesday had been pounded with hundreds of tons of shells and bombs from artillery massed near the outskirts and clouds of war planes roaring over in endless procession. Fighting methodically from factory to factory, the doughboys were routing the Germans in the outskirts with rifle and grenade, and a field dispatch said that among buildings cleared were two war plants, one making halftracks and the other artillery carriages.

Battle Crack Division.
It was not known how close the Americans were to the main part of Aachen after driving the enemy from the northeastern suburb, but supreme headquarters said it might be anywhere from 100 to 1,000 yards. All day long a crack German division with 20 to 25 tanks beat without success against American lines north of Aachen, trying to relieve the doomed garrison thru a mile-wide corridor between the siege positions.

The assault waves broke under a barrage from American artillery, including 30-mm. and 8 inch guns, which strafe the corridor. "Nothing has come thru that corridor in any size in any direction," said a high ranking United States 1st army officer. "Certainly the Germans have not and are not evacuating Aachen." The German radio, still pledging resistance to the death, described

RAINS OF VOSGES AN OLD STORY TO THIS U.S. LEADER

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN.
(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
AT AMERICAN DIVISIONAL HQ., near the Vosges Mountains, France, Oct. 12.—The curtain of rain was thick over the Vosges mountains and forests, the mud was ankle deep. American and German small arms and artillery were cracking in spasmodic engagements.

Down from the foothills came a major general who had just been visiting advance units of his veteran Yank infantry division.

"It's the same as it always was around here," the general remarked over a steaming cup of coffee, holding it to warm his hands before he drank.

This grizzled commander was a young second lieutenant commanding an infantry platoon in this sector in 1917 and 1918.

To Summit of Vosges.
"Our line then," he recalled, "was on the summit of the Vosges, hinged east of Fraize and St. Die, and we had an excellent observation post on Hohnack (second highest peak in the Vosges range) east of Gerardmer. Our present advance hasn't brought us to those points yet. The Germans know how important Hohnack is and they are using it as an observation post against us."

"Remiremont was the headquarters of an American army in 1918. It was mostly a holding action in the Vosges and the men were given field experience there before being moved to the fighting zone farther north."

Now whatever holding there is is being done by the Germans and our battle to crack thru the Vosges is one of the most difficult in military history. In a woods like this we can only deploy small groups and we must keep to the roads and trails whenever we can. And of course those paths are all mined by the Germans.

Can Be No Fast Movement.
"There can be no fast movement across open fields and flat country as there was farther south. But we had an idea of what was ahead of us. Other American infantry divisions and mine trained for woods and road fighting before leaving Italy."

"As for armor, it is not of much use for attacking here. A column of tanks isn't any better than one because they must travel single file and only the lead tank can fire. It's a miserable country in which to fight. It's very hard on foot soldiers and they are performing great feats of heroism and endurance."

"War has its sameness," he mused. "In 1918 the lads in the front lines were asking: 'When do we go home?' And that's what they're asking now. After the armistice they asked: 'Who won the war?' They'll probably have the same query after this one."

LET RETURNED SOLDIERS ALONE, GENERAL URGES

New York, Oct. 12 (Special).—Declaring the returning war veteran is able to make his own way in civilian life, Maj. Gen. Norman T. Kirk, surgeon general of the army, said today that "too many plans and too many agencies are trying to tell these fellows what to do."

"These men aren't asking for charity or sympathy," he asserted at a New York Times forum on "The Veteran and the Community." "They don't want anybody meddling in their business."

Gen. Kirk's stand was backed by another speaker, Jean A. Brunner, national commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Dare After Broken Date Has Tragic Climax.

Harry V. Hognas, 54, member of Bender & Hognas, hardware firm in the Furniture Mart, lay in bed in his room in the Pearson hotel, 190 E. Pearson st., last night and talked on the telephone with Mrs. Janet Tees of 1443 Fargo av.

She had been unable to keep a 7 p. m. dinner engagement, and they talked of that. In the midst of their conversation, Hognas threatened to shoot himself. Mrs. Tees laughed, thinking he was joking.

"Go ahead and shoot," she challenged.

Shot Self as He Talked.
A moment later Mrs. Tees heard a loud report over the phone. A few minutes later hotel employees summoned to room 629 by adjacent residents found Hognas dead in bed, the telephone at his lips, the wire still connected with Mrs. Tees' apartment. An old .38 caliber revolver was at his side. He had shot himself under the chin as he talked with Mrs. Tees. The report she thought was a fake was the fatal shot.

Mrs. Tees, a comely woman about 40, later told Detective Thomas Downes that Hognas previously had threatened to kill himself and she did not take his final threat seriously. However, she said, she did notify the hotel after the shooting.

She's Executive in Loop.

Mrs. Tees came from Calgary, Alta., and formerly was in the hotel business in Hamilton, Ont. She divorced her husband 14 years ago and lives with a daughter, Twyla, 16. Recently, she said, she obtained an executive job with a loop firm.

Mrs. Tees said that Hognas had been seeking a divorce to marry her and only yesterday had seen his wife, Jessie. Mrs. Hognas lives at 729 Hawthorn lane, Geneva, with a daughter, Alice, 21.

Lt. John A. Quinn said he understood that Hognas had written several letters, now in the mails, to Mrs. Tees. An unfinished letter, dated Sept. 10 and addressed to "Dear Al," mentioned personal troubles. Hognas was a member of an old Kane county family.

Yank Paper Rips Film Stars Who Walk Out on Soldiers

Star entertainers from the United States, particularly from Hollywood, stand accused by soldiers in the China-Burma-India war theater of reneging on their scheduled entertainment programs in that rugged area and then cashing in at home on publicity for their "patriotism."

Ann Sheridan, Joel McCrea, Pauline Goddard, Joe E. Brown, and Al Jolson were named in a protesting editorial in the C. B. I. Roundup, the theater's officially sanctioned weekly newspaper published at Delhi, India.

Received by Tribune.
A copy of the paper was received by THE TRIBUNE yesterday and with it was a letter from Maj. John E. Nixon, special service officer of the theater. He wrote:

"We have had one hell of a time with the Hollywood pets, to put it mildly, and we are very sick of their returning home and getting very favorable publicity nationwide for things they didn't do and for a job only partly done."

The Roundup said it had not previously publicized the "casual fashion in which big name entertainers turn up in C. B. I. with accompanying ballyhoo, stay around just long enough to send out their laundry, and then truck off home" because they didn't want to scare away the next outfit that thought of coming out there and because of the efforts of those who "really did a job."

Yawns in Springfield.
"But when soldiers are promised big time entertainment and the entertainers show up with hammy routines that would get yawns at a free dish matinee in Springfield, O., and then dog it after a month or six weeks, something ought to be done," the paper asserted. "This essay is prompted by a statement credited to Miss Ann Sheridan after having returned to the United States with her supporting company, including that well known wit and expectant father, Ben Blue."

Miss Sheridan, the editorial said, was quoted as saying that while she is eager to return to overseas entertaining she does not wish to go back to CBI because "it is too rough."

"We agree," the editorial continued, "for the most part CBI is pretty rough. But that is no secret. Our best is that before they come they enter into an agreement with the war department to stay a definite length of time. The shows are booked well in advance and announced at every base when they are scheduled to play."

"So what happens? These selfless patriots discover in a couple of weeks that CBI is hot, wet, and full of mosquitoes, and they suddenly develop prior commitments, serious ailments, enclitic wives, and God knows what else. It all sums to an overpowering desire to go home."

"The result is that a limited number of stations in CBI get some entertainment and a far greater number get disappointed and browned off. The selfless patriots spend, in the case of Sheridan (Ben) Blue & Co., a total of just 35 days out of a promised minimum of 60 in CBI, pick up a little money and a lot of publicity, and sneak back to the States."

"Lest we be accused of picking on a lady, we offer the case of one Joel McCrea. Mr. McCrea announced his intention of coming to CBI for a period of 60 days. He got as far as Cairo and heard tell that 'CBI was tough.' He never did get any farther than Cairo."

During the Nice Months.
"Joe E. Brown & Co. were committed to 120 days in CBI. They played 37 days and decamped, it being stated that Mr. Brown had to be in North Africa by a certain date, which apparently had been forgotten—until the last moment."

"Al Jolson & Co. never did show up. Mr. Jolson was reported to be ill, but gave performances in Italy and North Africa when he was scheduled for CBI."

Pauline Goddard & Co., the editorial said, stayed in CBI 54 days out of a promised 60, gave 52 shows, then the balance of the tour was canceled when Miss Goddard reportedly was taken ill.

DRIVE GERMAN INTO E. PRUSSIA ON 110 MI. LINE

Reds Close on Tilsit, Memel, and Riga.

LONDON, Oct. 13 (Friday).—(AP)—Russian troops fought to within 13 miles of the big German rail center of Tilsit in East Prussia yesterday. They hurled the enemy back across the East Prussian frontier on a 110 mile front in western Lithuania as they prepared for their first crossing in strength into pre-war Germany.

A Moscow bulletin announced that other soviet forces had driven to within five miles of Riga, Latvian capital, and to within 15 miles of the west Latvian port of Liepaja, steadily hacking up the estimated 150,000 axis troops cut off by the Red army's salient which three days ago reached the Baltic coast north of Memel.

Battle in Memel Reported.

The Algiers radio reported that Russian troops had broken into Memel's streets, and Berlin said that a furious tank battle was under way just a few miles from the East Prussian port.

A midnight soviet bulletin announced that the Russians had reached the Baltic at a second point north of Memel during the day, capturing Skidai, 15 miles south of Liepaja.

Ozelmest, not far inland from the coast and 23 miles southeast of Liepaja, also was seized, along with several other points along the coast between Skidai and captured Palanga, 15 miles north of Memel.

Gain Southeast of Memel.

In filling out their positions along the East Prussian frontier south-east of Memel the Russians captured two towns about 6 miles from Heydekrug. German communications center, and 14 miles from the Kurisches Hafl, big Baltic lagoon south of Memel.

Farther south the Russians took a frontier village 13 miles north of Tilsit.

In the sector south of the Niemen river the Russians reached the Sausepe river frontier of East Prussia on a 10 mile front between Zury and Ponove. The latter point had been captured Wednesday.

In the south other soviet forces captured the western Romanian rail hub of Oradea, main escape route for Nazi troops retreating in Transylvania and drove another spearhead to within 60 miles of Budapest as they widened their hold along the east bank of the Tisza river.

Topple Slav Towns.

In northern Yugoslavia the Russians toppled Subotica, an eight way road and rail junction connecting the axis front in Yugoslavia and Hungary. Subotica is 23 miles southwest of Szeged, Hungary's second city which fell to the Russians Wednesday.

South of the Danube river Red army troops and Marshal Tito's Partisans seized Smederovo, only 23 miles southeast of Belgrade, Yugoslav capital which appeared to be on the verge of early liberation.

The Germans said Russian forces which reached the fourth largest city of Hungary, Keszmet, 50 miles southeast of Budapest, had been pushed back by a German-Hungarian counter-attack. The Germans, however, admitted their Tisza river line had been shattered and said that "heavy fighting is raging west of the river."

A bulletin from Marshal Tito's headquarters said the combined Yugoslav-Russian forces had split the Germans in Serbia into two segments, pressing seven axis divisions back against the Danube and cutting off 16 divisions or perhaps 160,000 men in the lower Balkans.

Soldier Votes to Slow Nov. 7 Ballot Count

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

Soldier ballots will bring memories of the men in the foxholes into the home precinct polling places when the polls close at 5 p. m. Nov. 7. In many cases the ballot will be the latest word from boys on the battlefronts.

Election judges and clerks are expected to chat about the fighters they know when the envelopes are examined. And on this assumption the complex schedule for tabulating Cook county election returns has been slowed down.

First returns from each precinct are expected to be delayed by from 25 minutes to two hours by the count of the soldier ballots, according to Carl Schroeder, in charge of absentee voting for the Chicago election board. The law prohibits scanning of the envelopes until the polls close at 5 p. m.

Outline of Procedure.

Each soldier ballot envelope will have the soldier's application attached to it. The ballot and the application will be key together by a number because the name on the envelope may be blurred in transit.

The absentee's right to vote may be challenged by watchers on the ground that he never resided at the address given, or in the case when a voter appears in person. On some ballot envelopes already received comrades have written "deceased" or "missing in action." In other cases some one may produce proof of death before election day.

The precinct judges must pass on these questions before a ballot may be removed from the envelope, initiated by a clerk without being unfolded, and dropped into the ballot box. Once in the box, it will not be distinguishable from the civilian ballots cast that day.

Reject Ballots of Dead.

When judges rule that a soldier voter is dead, his ballot must be rejected. This is the law in most states. Ballots of soldiers missing in action will be counted, on instructions from the election board, on the theory that they are still alive.

About 150,000 absentee ballots are expected by the Chicago board, whose territory includes nine suburbs. Up to yesterday 63,221 had been received and they are coming in at the rate of 3,000 a day. There have been 126,686 applications and these continue to arrive at the rate of 500 a day.

This avalanche of absentee votes may be sufficient to swing the election. Results of the Missouri election of governor were reversed in 1942 by absentee ballots, which in that state may be counted eight days after the polls close. California, Colorado, Nebraska, North Dakota, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, and Washington also permit a delayed count of the soldier ballots.

Push Ballots to Polls.

In Cook county every effort is being made to get the latest ballots to precinct polling places. Those received up until Sunday night, Nov. 5, will be delivered to polling places early the next morning with supplies.

Soldier ballots received at the county building on Monday, Nov. 6, will be mailed special delivery to the polling places. Those that come in Tuesday morning will be hurried thru the clerical mill and be sent out by mail. The post-office has promised four-hour delivery.

Ballots received in the afternoon of election day will be sent to polling places in the 50 police cars the election board will have for general purposes. Those coming in too late for delivery by 5 p. m. will "die."

NAVY STRIKES AT JAP BASES IN PHILIPPINES

Troops Invade 12th Palau Island.

PACIFIC FLEET HQ., Pearl Harbor, Oct. 12 (AP).—A large force of carrier based planes struck Luzon, the main island in the Philippines, Tuesday afternoon, blasting air bases and military installations, Adm. Chester W. Nimitz announced tonight in a bulletin.

No details were given of damage caused at Luzon, on which Manila is located. The bulletin said the planes struck from "a task force of the Pacific fleet."

It was the third fleet action announced in three days—the other two were attacks on Marcus and the Ryukyus Sunday and Monday respectively—indicating the wide scope of American warship operations in the Pacific.

Invade New Isle.

It was the fifth such carrier plane strike at Luzon. Two of these smashed the Manila area. Tonight's bulletin also announced American 81st infantry troops had landed on the 12th island in the Palaus to come under American domination since Sept. 15. The soldiers went ashore Wednesday on Arimasaku, 4 miles northwest of Peleliu, and found it unoccupied.

This was the third new landing in the southern Palaus in four days.

BIG RAID ON BALIKPAPAN

ALLIED HQ., NEW GUINEA, Oct. 13 (Friday).—(AP)—Facilities supplying Japan's war machine with gasoline and oil were wrecked Tuesday at Balikpapan by 135 tons of bombs dropped by fighter escorted Liberators. From 36 to 46 enemy planes were shot down trying to break up the heaviest blow of the war at the Borneo base.

A cracking plant was rendered totally, perhaps permanently, inoperable and a paraffin refinery heavily damaged. Gen. MacArthur's bulletin, announcing the raid, said heavy explosions and fires in storage tanks sent up smoke for 20,000 feet. Photographs verified the destruction.

Thunderbolts Begin Raid.

Thunderbolts preceded the heavies in a mid-morning raid, engaging a strong force of Japanese fighters. Then Lightning's formed close cover while the bombers pushed thru intense flak to the target. Three bombers and a fighter of the attacking force were lost.

It was the sixth raid on Balikpapan in the neutralization campaign begun recently and the first escorted attack. The fighter planes flew more than 1,500 miles in what is believed to be the greatest operational distance for fighters in the history of aerial warfare.

It was in this raid also, MacArthur headquarters said, that Maj. Richard Bong of Poplar, Wis., shot down his 29th and 30th enemy planes, making him America's ace of aces.

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HQ., Pearl Harbor, Oct. 12 (AP).—American planes, 1,000 of them, attacked Formosa, just north of the Philippines, concentrating on the island's three most important towns, the Tokyo radio announced today. The report was not confirmed by the navy here. This would be the greatest air armada ever sent against the Japanese in a single operation in the Pacific. "It appears that some units of the China-based American air force also participated in this raid," the Japanese radio reported.

For on Southwest Shore.

Taiwan, Tainan, and Taichu took the brunt of the attack, the Tokyo broadcast, recorded by the federal communications commission, said. The towns are on the railway which runs the length of the island. Tainan and Taichu are also ports on the southwestern shore.

A Japanese bulletin reported "enemy aircraft" launched the attack at 7 a. m. today (Tokyo time) "in strength" and that the air "battle" was continuing "eight hours later." The Japanese claimed 100 American planes had been downed and that the "enemy continued to carry out his persistent attack . . . with a total of 1,000 planes."

Arthur L. Gates, assistant secretary of the navy, said in an address at Washington, D. C., last night that "the Japanese are serving with the United States fleet. He said 1,000 planes would be carrier based planes against the Japanese would be "only the beginning."

PAY GUARANTEE ISSUE DEBATED ON AIR PROGRAM

If industry attempts to guarantee labor a minimum annual wage, the American economy as a whole may suffer because of the reluctance of business men to expand their activities and increase their personnel in the face of the greater danger of loss which such a commitment would involve, William Benton, vice president of the University of Chicago, said last night on America's Town Meeting of the Air, which originated in the Chicago Civic Opera house.

He also argued that such a guarantee might operate to dissuade young men from starting their own businesses, because in a time of depression the minimum wage guarantee could ruin them.

Harold J. Rutenber, research director of the United Steel Workers of America (USWA), took the opposite view, declaring that a minimum annual wage would stabilize purchasing power and benefit the whole economy. Farmers and industry already enjoy a similar guaranty, he said, in the form of parity payments and potential tax refunds, respectively.

With Benton on the negative side was Merrylee S. Rukeyser, press service financial writer. Henry L. Nunn, president of the Nunn-Bush Shoe company, took the affirmative with Rutenber.

FRANCE PLEDGES ITSELF TO HELP VANQUISH JAPS

BY DAVID DANBAH.

PARIS, Oct. 12.—France's provisional government, thru its minister of colonies, Rene Plevin, today pledged itself to a final fight against the Japs. Their mission, Plevin said, will not only be to liberate Indo-China, which it considers the only portion of its colonial empire involved, but also to help vanquish the Japanese.

Plevin said his government would be opposed to granting naval bases in French possessions except where the world security would be served by the concession.

He complimented Gen. Charles de Gaulle for his courage in keeping the French colonial empire together and the Frenchmen except where the world security would be served by the concession.

MARINE DIVES ON A JAP GRENADE; SAVES PALS, DIES

BY STAFF SGT. WARD WALKER.

(Marine corps combat correspondent on military here from The Chicago Tribune, distributed by the Associated Press.)
FELICITY, Palau, Islands (Delayed).—This is about something that marine Corp. Lewis Kenneth Bausell, 20, of Washington, D. C., did stop a small coral ridge on this island. His deed cost him his life, but saved those of his comrades. Bausell was in a squad assigned to clean out one of the many Jap infested caves. On one side of the cave, 3d Lt. Jack Kimble, 23, of Greenville, Miss., and several men were using a flame thrower to force the Japs out thru the other side, where Bausell and several others waited. A Jap appeared and threw a grenade. "There wasn't any cover and no place to run," related Kimble. "Bausell ran toward the grenade and fell upon it." Badly injured, Bausell yelled, "Get that Jap." Kimble's men did, with a burst from the flame thrower. Bausell was evacuated to a hospital ship, where he died later.

BRITAIN URGED TO MATCH U. S. IN CIVIL AVIATION

Beaverbrook Asks for 'Fair Share.'

BY E. R. NODERER.

LONDON, Oct. 12.—The policy of international regulation of civil aviation by subsidy, to be proposed by the British government at the Chicago air conference on Nov. 1 by Lord Privy Seal Beaverbrook, disclosed today in the house of lords.

Lord Beaverbrook said in some directions Britain's air future presently does not look very bright. Beaverbrook said he had complete faith in the genius of the British aircraft and engine industry to win this country its proper place in civil aviation. "Britain's effort in civil aviation must parallel the immense effort being made by America," he declared. Opportunities open to the aircraft industry, he said, are revealed by the fact that of the 55 nations to attend the Chicago conference only four manufacture aircraft engines.

"Fair Share" Sought.
"We must see to it that our design is good enough and our production big enough to insure Britain what we were denied in the motor car industry—a fair share of the world market for civil aviation," Beaverbrook declared.

He said that Britain agreed with America that the principle of regulated state aid was essential, but added that "we look forward to the day when subsidies no longer will be necessary."

Beaverbrook, in his "swan song" as minister in charge of civil aviation, was replying to the debate initiated by former air minister Lord Londonderry, in which the peers voiced serious concern over Britain's chances of competing with the United States for post-war air routes and sought information regarding the status of the newly appointed minister of civil aviation, Lord Swinton.

BRITAIN AND MEXICO STUDY AIR ROUTE FOR USE AGAINST JAPAN

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 12 (AP).—British and Mexican military authorities are studying a plan for British and other allied nations to use Mexican bases and ports on a proposed air route to the Pacific for eventual use in the war against Japan.

Air Commodore Griffith Powell of the R. A. F., now stationed in Canada, has been here several times to confer with Mexican authorities. Negotiations were opened last spring and there have been several visits here by Canadian as well as British air officials and experts to lay out a possible route.

One of the points being considered is Clipperton Island, about 600 miles southwest of the Mexican coast. It is largely a desert coral island, but might make one good stepping stone to the westward. So far, British military men said, there have been no decisions either as to the exact bases that might be used or even whether the route across Mexico is the most desirable one.

ton, who is expected here from West Africa at the end of this month, would head the British delegation to the Chicago conference if he arrived in time.

Opening the debate, Lord Londonderry had warned that unless Britain obtains a foremost place in the air after the war, she would sink to the status of a second rate power. At the end of the war, he said, America would have air lines radiating "world-wide and that if Britain did not possess corresponding services "then we shall find the dominions will speak to us in terms we may not understand."

Lord Chatfield blamed the government for ignoring an offer by the British shipping lines to operate a South American air service. America, he said, "profiting by our hopeless indecision" quietly opened air connection on that route.

YANKS BATTLE HOUSE TO HOUSE IN FRENCH TOWN

BY ROBERT CROMIE.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
WITH U. S. 3D ARMY TROOPS IN MAIZIERES-LES-METZ, France, Oct. 11 (Delayed).—This small steel mill town astride the main road into Metz from the north probably isn't even on your map of France. But plenty of doughboys will remember it as long as they live.

American infantrymen swarmed into Maizieres at dawn last Saturday from positions on a slag pile which dominates the town from the north. For a little while it looked as tho it might not be too tough a proposition. Then the Germans rallied, rushed in reinforcements, and began pounding the Americans with mortars and artillery.

Four days later we held the northern third of Maizieres and are slowly cleaning out the lower two-thirds in house to house fighting, using bazookas, flame throwers, grenades, mortars, artillery, tanks and plenty of guns.

Holds Accelerator Down.

Gary Sheahan, Tribune war artist, and this correspondent along with others, visited Maizieres today in a jeep driven by Pvt. Harry Wollman, 2815 N. Damen av., Chicago. Wollman held the accelerator down between a blasted bridge and a burned out tank—two landmarks which mark a section of the road made unhealthy by intermittent enemy shelling—but nothing hit until we got into town and comparative safety.

Capt. Carl Weinrich, 630 Sheridan rd., Evanston, Ill., an artillery liaison officer, led the way to an observation post where Lt. John Ewing, Brownstown, Ill., was directing fire. American shells whistled loudly overhead and burst in plain view on a house perhaps 150 yards down the street. The house was so situated that it commanded a block each way.

There was a final burst and Ewing grinned and said, "The building isn't there any more."

Set Building on Fire.
There was a barricade down the street and perhaps 100 feet beyond a dead German was lying staring into nothing in particular. To one side G. Is from time to time were running across a street. Then there was a burst of flame half hidden by the trees. One flame thrower was igniting a house which was so situated that it was considered best to destroy it so the Germans couldn't recoup it.

"How close are the Germans?" some one asked. An officer pointed to a house a half block away and said he had just seen a German race across the street into it.

"They're so close at night that they come in to try and play cards with us," the officer said.

One Chimney Smoking.
By now the flame thrower had the blaze in the next street going so well that smoke was even coming from the chimney of the house—the only chimney smoking in the whole town which was deserted by its peace time population except for a few chickens and rabbits unhappily about the streets.

We left our observation post.

Behind us came a loud bang. We ran a few yards because Capt. Weinrich ran. Then we walked past a dead German officer whose face was covered by a cloth and whose right hand was flung above his head and pointing back the way he had come.

At the railroad track the Germans threw a shell somewhere not too far away and Weinrich suggested we wait a little while to see if any more were en route. So we stepped under some convenient concrete steps while Sheahan drew a portrait. Then we went on.

CHINESE BATTLE

JAPS 25 MILES FROM KWEILIN

CHUNGKING, China, Oct. 12 (AP).—Brisk fighting is continuing along the Hunan-Kwangsi railway front 25 miles north of Kweilin, vital defense center of Kwangsi province, where reinforced Japanese troops are hammering against Chinese positions, the Chinese high command announced today.

On the Kwangtung-Kwangsi border, Japanese troops moving from Pingnan are now about nine miles south of Kweiping, their objective. Kweiping is 70 miles southeast of Luichow.

On the Yunnan front, American fighters and bombers hit Mangshih, Japanese position on the Burma road, twice in the last three days, causing large fires and secondary explosions. A Japanese held bridge was knocked out and the Burma road damaged. Chinese troops occupied a hill five miles southeast of Mangshih.

2 YANKS PINNED IN FOXHOLE WITH MUD AND DEAD

BY FRANKLIN BANKER.

WITH U. S. INFANTRY INSIDE THE SIEGFRIED LINE, Oct. 6 (Delayed).—(P).—Two American infantrymen related today what it felt like to be pinned in a Siegfried line foxhole for three days with artillery shells whining overhead and American dead lying near-by because the German fire was so heavy they were unable to retrieve the bodies.

Lt. Alfred Antey, forward platoon leader, of Evansville, Ind., and Sgt. John Garcia, of Noble, La., who were helping to hold the front line south of Aachen, told the story over a field telephone from the foxhole where they crouched, legs stiff from their damp confinement.

Foxhole to Command Post.

I listened in on the other end of the line in a company command post. The foxhole is only 200 yards from the command post, yet it would be impossible to get there now in daylight. Any one who tried would be mowed down.

These tough doughboys must stay in their foxhole until they are relieved—in two to four days, or even a week in an emergency—living on cold rations and canteens of water sneaked to them at night.

The only protection from intermittent rain is a canvas shelter half stretched over the top of the foxhole.

Place for Rheumatism.

"Our two-man foxhole is more of a slit trench six feet long and two and one-half feet deep," Antey said. "We've been here three days. It's pretty windy and a good place to catch rheumatism."

"We are in a completely exposed position on a knoll and some Huns are on another knoll 400 yards from us. More of them are on a ridge looking right down on us."

"If you stick your head two inches above the ground you'll get shot at, so we can't move about at all in the daytime. In fact, we can hardly move at night on account

BRITONS CLAIM CREDIT FOR LIBERTY SHIPS AND LANDING CRAFT

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

LONDON, Oct. 12.—The Shipyard Spotlight, a monthly magazine issued by the admiralty, claims British designers invented the Liberty ship and turned over the plans to Henry Kaiser.

The Daily Mirror, reporting the admiralty publication's statement, says it was in the drawing shops of British ship building firms that the U-boat chasing corvette and frigate were planned and that the thousands of landing craft which landed troops in Normandy on D-day were designed in Britain the mostly built in the United States.

In addition, it was stated that the auxiliary aircraft carriers which protected the Atlantic ocean convoys had their birth in the British ship yards.

of becoming silhouetted against the sky."

Garcia took the telephone.

"Hello," he said. "I'm trying to make some bouillon with a can of tinned meat."

"We put cardboard on the bottom of the foxhole to keep as dry as possible. Straw is best, but it's all wet."

"It's so wet and cold that we can't sleep."

"All in all, it's pretty miserable here, but we're holding that line."

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be too tight clothing. The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acid out of the blood. When this process is hindered by tight clothing, the acid builds up in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatism, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headache and dizziness. Prevention or speedy passage with smarting and burning sensation shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or blood.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's.

F. D. R. REVEALS PLAN TO SPEED WORLD LEAGUE

Won't Wait for End of Global War.

BY PHILIP DODD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
Washington, D. C., Oct. 12.—President Roosevelt, in a Columbus day address before a group of Latin American diplomats, today disclosed plans for the creation of a world peace organization without waiting for the end of the war.

"It is our objective," the President said, "to establish the solid foundations of the peace organization without further delay and without waiting for the end of hostilities. There must, of course, be time for discussion by all the peace loving nations—large and small."

The President used the occasion to plead for cooperation between the countries of the western hemisphere within the international security organization, plans for which were made at the recent Dumbarton Oaks conference in Washington.

One Break in Solidarity.
"We have maintained the solidarity of the governments of all the American republics—except one," President Roosevelt said.

It was apparent the "one" referred to was Argentina, which had been blacklisted by Secretary of State Hull for not cooperating with allied nations in the war against Germany and Japan. No Argentine representative was in the group that heard the President speak.

"The bonds that unite the American republics into a community of good neighbors must remain strong," the President said. "Within the framework of the world organization of the united nations, which the governments and people of the American republics are helping to establish, the inter-American system can and must play a strong and vital role."

Columbus "Internationalist."
Paying tribute to Christopher Columbus, Mr. Roosevelt said it was significant that "today in Italy—the homeland of Columbus—forces from many parts of this hemisphere and from many parts of the civilized world are fighting for freedom against the German threat of medieval tyranny."

"If the spirit of Columbus hovers over his native land today," the President said, "we can be sure that he rejoices in the varied nature of the allied forces. For he was one of the truly great internationalists of all time."

PLEDGE TO ITALY

Washington, D. C., Oct. 12 (AP).—President Roosevelt said tonight that when the allies complete military operations in Italy the Italians will be free to work out their own destiny under a government of their own choosing.

In a radio address broadcast from the White House, Mr. Roosevelt said the American army entered Italy "not as conquerors, but as liberators. Their objective is military, not political."

The President's address was directed to the meeting of the Italian-American labor council in New York in acceptance of the council's "four freedoms" award granted to the President.

Plan to Aid Nation.
"Of course, the people of Italy have suffered terribly and it will not be humanly possible to take wholly adequate measures to relieve all suffering until Germany has been finally and decisively defeated," Mr. Roosevelt said. "But the united nations are determined that every possible measure be taken to aid the Italian people directly, and to

In New York, Atty. Gen. Biddle presented the four freedoms award with the declaration that President Roosevelt "maintained his faith in the Italian soul" even when Italy was brought into war against the United States.

POLICE PROBING GIRL'S DEATH IN HOLLYWOOD TUB

Hollywood, Cal., Oct. 12 (Special).

—The body of Georgeanne Bauerdorf, 20, daughter of George F. Bauerdorf, wealthy retired oil man, was found face down in the bath tub of her parents' Hollywood apartment this morning.

Cause of death was not immediately determined, and Inspector William J. Penprase of the sheriff's department said he would express no opinion until he receives the report of Dr. Frank R. Webb, chief county autopsy surgeon tomorrow.

Investigating officers said they were mystified by a wash cloth or piece of towel stuffed into the girl's mouth. No effort was made to remove the cloth, which, they said, will be left until Dr. Webb examines the body.

Find Bloodstains on Rug

Bloodstains were found on a rug in the bedroom adjoining the bathroom and an attempt apparently had been made to wipe them away, the investigators reported. However, the girl had had a bloody nose and this may have accounted for the bloodstains, officers said.

Preliminary examination of the body led Penprase to speculate whether the girl had been knocked unconscious by a fall and had drowned.

"I hope we'll be able to determine exactly what caused her death at the autopsy," he said.

Sheriff's officers instigated a search for a 1936 model coupe, registered in the name of Connie Bauerdorf, the dead girl's sister, which they said was missing. They were also seeking a young girl, who was named in Miss Bauerdorf's diary as her companion Wednesday night, for questioning in connection with Miss Bauerdorf's movements last night.

Body Only Partly Clad

When found by Mrs. Luis Attwood, who has charge of maintenance of the apartment, the body was clad only in the top of her pajamas, deputies reported, the lower half of which lay on the floor beside the bed.

Mrs. Rose Gilbert, secretary to the girl's father, said she had seen Miss Bauerdorf at 1 p. m. yesterday at which time the girl was in good health and spirits. She told sheriff's officers that the girl's father, step-mother, and sister had left about Aug. 28 for a business trip to New York.

FUEL SHORTAGE GROUNDS NAZI PLANES: ARNOLD

Washington, D. C., Oct. 12 (AP).—The Luftwaffe now has more aircraft than when Hitler sent it against Poland in 1939, Gen. H. H. Arnold said today, but it is grounded by lack of gasoline and oil.

The commanding general of the United States army air forces said the nonflying status of the Nazi warplanes resulted from carefully planned and boldly executed allied attacks on their sources of supply, their communications, and their storage places.

Germany's present productive capacity for synthetic fuels, he told a meeting of the Wings club, is down to 30 per cent of normal.

He said the fuel shortage led the Germans first to reduce training and finally to end training altogether, so that there also is a shortage of pilots.

NAZI AIR FORCE JOINS DEFENSE OF FLAMING AACHEN

Yanks Capture Suburb; Battle Crack Troops.

The Aachen action as "the greatest battle ever fought on the western front." The radio named a Lt. Col. Lel as commander of the Aachen garrison.

Two Columns Turned Back. As fires raged in the city, refugees reported that water supplies which might have been checked had been cut by the bombardment. Food also was running low.

Yesterday heavy fighting broke out six miles north of Aachen in the area of Bardenberg, which for days has been a bloody battlefield. This was the scene of the main effort to relieve the trapped garrison, but the day long attacks got the Germans nowhere.

Use Flame Throwing Tanks. The Berlin radio, admitting heavy German losses, said the Americans used flame throwing tanks in the struggle.

Eleven miles southeast of Aachen, however, the Americans were forced to fall back from the area of Germet under furious counter-blows. Counter-balancing this reverse, the Americans to the north, fighting thru strongly defended Hurtgen forest, cut one of two main highways leading south out of Duren, road junction 20 miles west of Cologne. The road was severed one mile southwest of the village of Hurtgen.

The United States 3d army in eastern France plugged it out with counter-attacking Germans north of Nancy and at Maizières-les-Metz, six miles north of Metz.

The United States 7th army on the southern end of the 460 mile front repulsed counter-blows around Le Thillot, 15 miles north of Belfort, and made limited advances thru the foothills of the Vosges mountains north of that strategic doorway to the southern Rhineland.

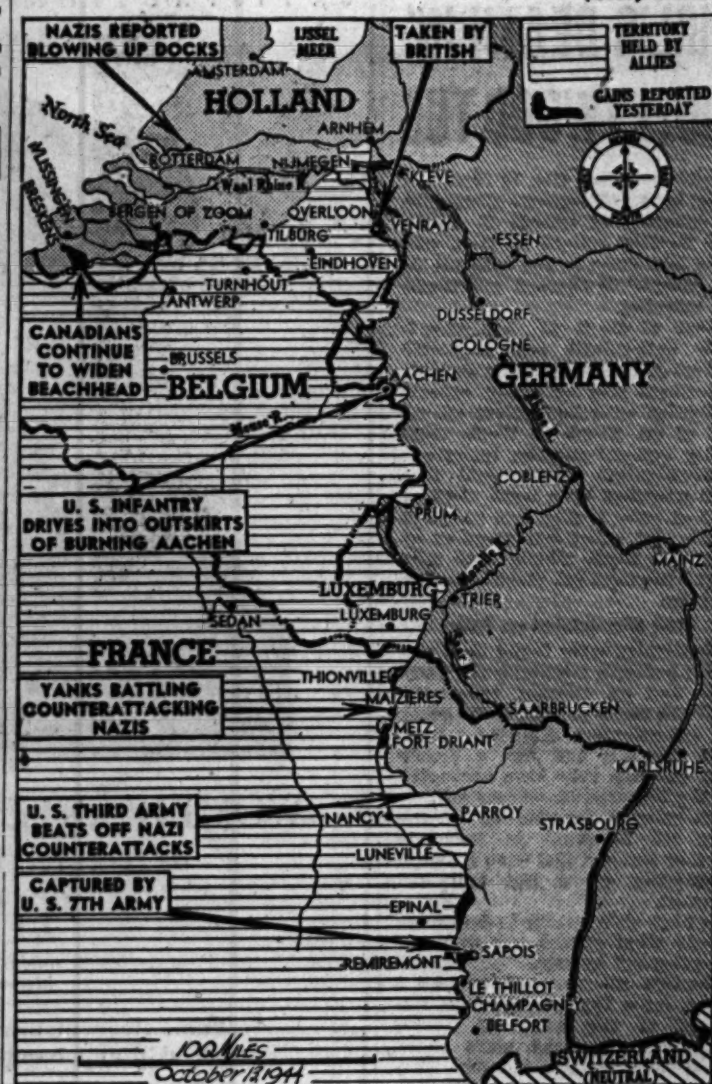

7th Army Seizes Village.

Most significant was the capture of the village of Sapois, 15 miles west of Schlucht pass, one of four main ones thru the Vosges. Schlucht pass is 28 miles north of the gap at Belfort.

ter-attacks and have occupied the villages of Ormont, Gerbmont, Pianos, and Trougemont.

Meanwhile, action flared in Holland, where the Germans were reported to have blown up more than 10 miles of quays and docks in Holland's second largest city of Rotterdam which had a pre-war population of 612,372.

Roads south and east of Rotterdam were clogged with German transport, a front dispatch said, indicating the Germans were preparing to pull out of northwestern Holland or were shifting the bulk of their estimated 150,000 garrison southward to meet the Canadians and British.

Nazis Abandon Bridgehead.

The British 2d army discovered that the Germans had abandoned abruptly a bridgehead 12 miles wide on the south bank of the Neder Rhine (Lek) between Arnhem and Rotterdam. The Germans also gave up another smaller one nearby.

The Canadians, keeping up the pressure on this German force from the south, poured reinforcements into their widening beachhead on the Schelde estuary west of Antwerp and to the east fought within two miles of the enemy base of Bergen op Zoom, 19 miles north of Antwerp.

From their beachhead they were closing on Breskens, five miles west of their landings near the village of Hoofdpiet.

The Canadians also struck southward beyond captured Biervliet, three miles southeast of their original landings. To the south they widened their bridgehead across the Leopold canal and were advancing on the Dutch city of Aardenburg.

New Bombings of Dikes.

The Germans in the islands of Walcheren and South Beveland in the Schelde estuary to the north were cut off by land by the Canadian army force driving on Bergen op Zoom, and fresh bombings of the dikes left the island of Walcheren two-thirds flooded.

British infantry supported by massed artillery and strong air cover surged into Nazi held Overloon, Dutch town 10 miles from the German border, on the heels of a sharp attack launched against German positions still west of the Meuse (Mass) river.

Developments yesterday in the Aachen war area.

750 AMERICAN PLANES BATTER BREMEN PLANTS

LONDON, Oct. 12 (AP).—A fleet of 750 American heavy bombers, part of a force of nearly 5,000 allied planes attacking widely scattered axis targets, rained explosives on an aircraft plant and motor transport factory at Bremen today.

The 650 Mustangs and Lightnings escorting the Flying Fortresses and Liberators bagged 18 German fighters in the Bremen-Hannover area, but none of the enemy fighters molested the big bombers.

Four Luftwaffe fighter planes went down over Hannover, Germany, today before the flaming guns of Lt. Charles B. Yeager, Hamlin, W. Va., who a few days ago went to Gen. Eisenhower personally asking permission to return to combat.

The Thunderbolt group, led by Lt. Col. David Schilling, Traverse City, Mich., saw 10 enemy fighters in the Dummerlake area, but the Germans refused combat. Lt. James E. Lister, Savanna, Ill., chased a Focke-Wulf thru a cloud, getting close enough to fire a single burst. The German went down flaming.

REPORT BERLIN ASKS AUSTRIA TO HOLD FAST

LONDON, Oct. 12 (AP).—Berlin has launched a "last appeal" to Hungary to hold fast and not abandon Germany. Turkish sources said today. The Nazis also urged Austrians to dig for their lives in frontier defense spade work near Vienna.

All able bodied men and women in the Vienna region were at or on their way to the diggings after a mass callup of age groups between 16 and 65. Proclamations appealed to them to "follow the example of East Prussians and Rhinelanders."

The Ankara radio quoted Stockholm advices tonight reviewing reports that Hungary had asked for armistice terms.

In London, Czechoslovakia's president, Eduard Benes, received Count Michael Karolyi, who was president of the short lived Hungarian republic established after the last war, for a discussion of future Czechoslovak-Hungarian relations—a hint that Dr. Benes expects important developments.

WE'LL FIGHT ON THRU WINTER IF NECESSARY: IKE

Calls Aachen Destruction Field Tactics Only.

BY LARRY RUE.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
SUPREME HDQ. ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, France, Oct. 12.—In his first appearance before correspondents following transfer of his press headquarters from London to France, Gen. Eisenhower said today the war will be carried on relentlessly, aggressively, and without letup thru the winter and beyond if necessary to crush Germany.

He declined to predict when the war will end, but said the Germans are fighting a desperate battle and have nothing to gain by quitting. Much depends on the reestablishment of communications over the far flung front, he said. It isn't possible, he added, to ship millions of tons across the channel and lift it down at the front in one day.

No Respite for Foe.
Meanwhile Germany is getting no respite, he continued. The geographical progress of the war, he said, is like a broken curve with peaks and dips, but this is no reason for discouragement. On the other hand, he added, the task facing the allies must not be underestimated. Germany now has the advantage of short lines of communications, and the allies are up against an intricate network of railways and roads which Germany had perfected over the last century.

The Germans people, he said, are under ruthless control of the Gestapo. They know they have a gun against their ribs all the time and that if they falter they will be shot. Gen. Eisenhower said the allies will enter Germany as conquerors and govern by right of conquest.

March as Conquerors.
"In Germany," he said, "there will be no fraternization. We go in as conquerors and we shall treat them justly in conformity with civilized standards as exemplified by our governments. We shall have nothing to do with them except in necessary official relationships."

The present destruction of Aachen, Gen. Eisenhower said, is a matter of field tactics rather than general American policy toward German cities.

"We have complete confidence," he said, "in the people of the United States, Britain, France, and all the united nations to see this war thru to final victory. We have a hard job ahead but victory is certain."

ATHERTON SEES VETS UNSAFE IN HANDS OF F. D. R.

Re-election Fought by Ex-Legion Chief.

New York, Oct. 12 (Special).—Warren Atherton, past national commander of the American Legion and the man given credit for drafting the G. I. Bill of Rights, tonight advocated the election of Gov. Dewey and Gov. Bricker on Nov. 7 because, he said, "the case of the returning soldier and sailor would not be safe" in the hands of the "man who seeks to command the American people for 16 years."

In a radio address over the Mutual network, Atherton assailed President Roosevelt's record, declaring it showed he "is not the man who will preserve a union of sovereign states with a national government of limited powers functioning thru three equal branches. He is not the executive who will be a servant to a supreme citizenry."

Veterans Have Big Stake.

Speaking as a "veteran of World War I, and a father of sons in the service," the former Legion chief declared "veterans, parents, dear ones and men and women in uniform have a vital stake in the coming election because the man elected can make or break the future of 12 million men and women who win the victory."

Atherton is chairman of the war veterans' division of the Republican national committee. Atherton charged that "in 12 years of power the President has created alphabetical agencies which make regulations in secret, then enforce them and punish for infractions."

"He has abrogated the right of men to contract for their hire. They must work under conditions and for the price fixed by the war labor board.

Tried to Purge Congress.

"He has sought to pauperize farmers, workers, and business men by making them dependent on federal handouts. He has tried to purge members of congress who differed with him. He did his best to pack the Supreme court."

"The President has broken down states' rights. He has sought to override the judiciary and congress. He cannot be depended upon to preserve the freedoms and the protections of Washington and Jefferson."

Atherton declared "the service men and women who want business opportunities and real jobs when they come back have nothing to expect from the present administration. It has operated on deficits for eight years of peace and four of war."

U. S. FLYERS RAID BOLOGNA AREA 'CASSINO' STYLE

ROME, Oct. 12 (P).—American planes in their greatest blow yet in the Italian campaign delivered a "Cassino type" assault on German bivouacs and stores in the Bologna area today. They attempted to blast a pathway into the Po valley for the United States 5th army which has been halted by a Nazi death stand in the Apennine mountains just south of Bologna.

The force of Fortresses and Liberators was the largest 15th air force armada ever sent over a single target area and was integrated closely with powerful attacks by medium and fighter bombers.

No Fighter Opposition.

A few heavy bombers were lost from ground fire, but there was no enemy fighter opposition.

An official report today of the battle 10 miles south of Bologna at Livernano said that "contrasted with their former tactics of withdrawing after a tough delaying action, the enemy now is making an all-out stand and is fighting strenuously until killed or captured."

The Nazis threw one counter-attack after another against Lt. Gen. Clark's veterans, and the number of enemy prisoners being taken was increasing rapidly.

Brazilians Make Progress.

Headquarters said that 8th army gains near the Adriatic coast in recent days had outflanked German positions north of the Fiumicino river and had compelled the enemy to withdraw to a new line running

WITH THE 5TH ARMY, in Italy, Oct. 12.—Ninety-four soldiers who went to war for the United States before they had the opportunity to become citizens, took the oath of citizenship today in a special Columbus day ceremony at Lt. Gen. Clark's headquarters.

Two soldiers from Illinois, both of them veterans of the vicious fighting which broke the Germans' Gothic line, were among the men. They were Corp. Ray Bracomontes of Granite City, a native of Mexico, and Tech. 1st Class Xasper Hustova of Peashontas, a Slovakian.

The soldiers stood in the drizzling rain while Brig. Gen. Joseph Sullivan of San Francisco, Cal., read a letter of commendation. Franklin Murrell of the United States department of immigration and naturalization administered the oath of allegiance and distributed the citizenship papers.

Gambettola is 2 1/2 miles beyond the newly captured towns of Gatteo and Sangiovanni Incomito, and 4 1/2 miles southeast of the important junction town of Cesena on the main highway between Rimini and Bologna.

A Brazilian division advancing up both sides of the Serchio river near the west coast made continued progress, apparently against light German resistance. One column moving up the east side of the river reached Barga, 15 1/2 miles north of Lucca and about 35 miles east of the naval base of La Spezia.

TAKE 600 NAZIS IN CLEANUP OF ALBANIAN PORT

ROME, Oct. 12 (P).—More than 600 Germans and large stores of guns and material have been captured in the allied clean up of the Sarande (Porto Edda) area of Albania the last two days, headquarters announced today. Albanian Partisans, cooperating with British invasion troops, cleared the Nazis out of Gjashtle, two miles inland from Sarande, after inflicting severe casualties.

British warships and planes battered harbor installations and shipping in the Aegean sea to hamper German withdrawals from the Athens area in Greece. A striking force from an aircraft carrier smashed at the Island of Leros near the Turkish coast.

DOUGLAS PLANT IGNORES SLUSH FUND FOR F.D.R.

Little Success Reported in 4th Term Drive.

Officials of the CIO United Automobile Workers union at the huge Douglas aircraft plant in Park Ridge have refused to follow national CIO orders to press members for contributions to Sidney Hillman's political action committee slush fund, they said yesterday, and as a consequence only a fraction of the workers have given their dollars to the fourth term war chest.

Only a few of the more than 175 shop stewards of local 201 at the plant have asked for buttons to sell to members at a dollar each, and only voluntary contributions have been received and turned over to the PAC, according to Harold Wilkerson, shop steward and member of the union grievance committee.

Busy on Local Problems.

"We have too many strictly local problems to pay attention to what we regard as a national affair," Wilkerson said. "The PAC is not a big factor in our local, which is only seven or eight months old and which we are trying to keep local in the scope of its operations."

"Our greatest current problem is to increase our membership, which totals about 75 per cent of the working force at this plant, and it keeps us busy signing up 600 to 800 new members each month."

"Straightening out grievances which arise in the operation of a big new plant like this is our second major problem. We don't have time for other activities. We did pass out leaflets urging members to register so they can vote, but this is the only political literature that has been distributed here, and it did not advocate the election of any person or party."

"Little Success" on Collections.

Neither Wilkerson nor Louis Rosell, a steward who is in charge of the union's Community and War Fund drive at the plant, would estimate the number of dollars collected for the PAC, but they agreed that sponsors of the drive had had "very little success." Wilkerson said he believed that "far less than half" of the members had contributed.

Other officials said the stewards' governing body had not condemned the PAC drive, but had squelched it effectively thru a "gentlemen's agreement" not to give it official sanction or to make it a part of the local's program. They said, however, the union had assisted several hundred members to register for the November election.

Neither to his wife Dorothy or to his parents, however, did Pvt. Marks elaborate on how he captured the Germans. Pvt. Marks was awarded the combat badge during the Sicilian campaign.

LAST U.S. CAPTIVE LEAVES ROMANIA ON A STRETCHER

BY SAM BEEWEBER
(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

BUCHAREST, Romania, Oct. 12.—The last American prisoner has left Romania homeward bound—on a stretcher but recovering from flak wounds which doctors at first feared would prove fatal. He is Robert Tierney, 22, of Ridgefield, N. J., a gunner in a Flying Fortress who was shot down over Ploesti last August.

Tierney was discovered in a hospital at Puchin near Ploesti, Sept. 1, by some of the first American officers who arrived here to repatriate prisoners. He was getting the best attention possible but a Romanian surgeon said he feared he would not recover. Two American doctors were flown here from Italy with penicillin and other supplies and yesterday, after six weeks of constant attention, he was able to fly by air for Italy from where he is due to leave as soon as possible for home.

An American colonel, struck by the courageous fight he has made, took off his own Purple Heart and pinned it on Tierney, who said: "That's one decoration I never yearned to get."

Sergeant's Salute to New Son Knocks Off 10 Nazis

WITH THE 1ST ARMY IN GERMANY, Oct. 12 (AP)—Sgt. Walter G. Burroughs of Louisville, Miss., had been too busy fighting to read his mail for several days—but when he did he learned that he has a son, born since he left home. "That boy is going to get a 21 round salute," Burroughs said. About that time a column of Germans came around the corner. The sergeant opened up with his machine gun, and the salute to his new son brought down 10 Nazis. The others fled.

IF A CANDIDATE DIES, HIS PARTY PICKS NEW ONE

Electoral College Decides

Issue After Nov. 7.

BY WALTER TROHAN.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.) Washington, D. C., Oct. 12.—The question of Presidential succession has been dramatically raised in the current Presidential campaign by reason of the death of Gov. Dewey's campaign special in the northwest, in which a sailor lost his life: the recent death of Wendell Willkie, 1940 Republican candidate, and concern over the health of President Roosevelt.

In response to numerous queries as to what action would be taken under various circumstances, which might arise, THE TRIBUNE consulted the Republican and Democratic national committees and constitutional authorities on various phases of Presidential and Vice Presidential succession.

At Republican and Democratic headquarters it was said that if any of the four national candidates were to meet with an accident or die, as did Willkie, the national committee concerned would call a special meeting to select a candidate for what ever vacancy should arise. It was explained that resolutions authorizing the national committees to so act were passed at both national conventions in Chicago in accordance with long established custom.

Question of Succession. Constitutional lawyers took up the question of succession after Nov. 7. The Constitution provides that, "if, at the time fixed for the beginning of the term of the President, the President elect shall have died, the Vice President elect shall become President."

Lawyers explained, however, that this is not as simple as it might seem at first reading. They said neither President Roosevelt nor Gov. Dewey can become President elect, within the definition of the Constitution, until after the electoral college casts its vote in the middle of December.

Thus, if, on election by the people Nov. 7, either should meet with an accident before the meeting of the electoral college, it would not follow that either of their respective Vice Presidents—Gov. Bricker or Sen. Truman—would become President.

Refusal Is Possible. In the event death came either to Dewey or Mr. Roosevelt after their election, the electoral college might refuse to vote for either Truman or Bricker for the Presidency, lawyers said.

If Roosevelt, electors spurned Truman, they might agree on one candidate or split votes among a number of candidates. If they agreed on one candidate, that candidate would become President-elect and enter the White House next Jan. 20.

If the Democratic electors split their votes so that no candidate received a majority of the electoral vote, then the Presidential election would be thrown into the house of representatives, lawyers said. The Constitution provides that the house, in such an event, would vote for the three candidates receiving the highest electoral vote.

One Vote for Each State. In a house election each state delegation casts one vote. The candidate who receives the majority of house votes becomes President-elect. If the vote were taken before Jan. 3, the present house would elect. If the vote were taken after that, the house as reconstituted by the Nov. 7 election would elect.

The same procedure would be followed if Dewey were to be elected Nov. 7 and die before the electoral college could seal his election.

As of today (death in congress might change the whole picture), theoretically and leaving out practical politics, Wisconsin would be the controlling factor in a Presidential election thrown into the house. Twenty-two states have Republican majorities in their house delegations, 22 have Democratic majorities, and three states have evenly split delegations which might cause the states to lose their votes.

Probable G. O. P. Vote.

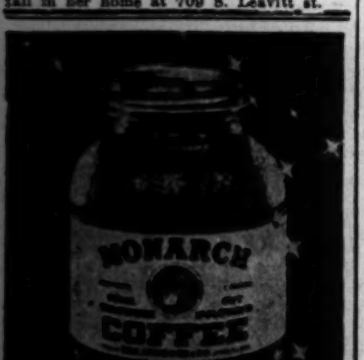

Wisconsin, with 5 Republicans, 3 Democrats, and 2 Progressives, probably would vote for a Republican. The total vote then would be Republican 23, Democratic 22. This assumes the three states with split delegations, Idaho, Washington, and West Virginia, were denied votes.

The new house, to be chosen at the polls Nov. 7, is expected by political observers to be predominantly Republican. It will be seated Jan. 3, only 17 days before the date of inauguration of the next President.

In the event of failure of the electoral college to agree on a Vice President elect, the contest would go to the senate rather than the house. The Vice President is the presiding officer of the senate.

If a President elect shall not have been chosen by the time of inauguration day, then the Vice President elect shall act as President until a President is qualified. If neither a President elect or Vice President elect shall have qualified by Jan. 20, the Constitution provides that congress may by law determine who shall act as President until an executive is qualified.

UNION HEAD DENIES CHICAGOAN'S OUSTER OVER PAC DONATION

New York, Oct. 12 (AP).—Testimony given by Dock J. Williams, former president of Chicago local 25, United Packinghouse Workers (CIO), that he was ousted because of his refusal to approve a $1,500 contribution by the local to the CIO political action committee was termed false today by Lewis J. Clark, president of the union, in a statement released here by CIO-PAC.

Williams testified before a sub-group of the Dies committee Sept. 28. He was removed from office by the international executive board, Clark declared, "because he was elected without following the union's constitutional provision."

Clark said Williams was defeated at a later election by a vote of about 2 to 1. A contest of the ouster is pending in a Chicago court.

ADD 6 HOSPITALS TO TRIBUNE GIFT PLAN FOR YANKS

BY HARRY McCLAIN.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.) Topeka, Kas., Oct. 12.—Participation of thousands of sick and wounded soldiers in three 7th service command general hospitals and three regional hospitals in the Chicago Tribune 1944 Christmas gift program was assured today with approval of the plan by 7th service command headquarters in Omaha, Neb.

Winter General hospital in Topeka was one of the hospitals to which Tribune readers sent presents last year and Col. John W. Sherwood, commanding officer, said today the staff will look forward to distributing the gifts this year.

More Than 1,500 Patients. Winter hospital, which was opened July 7, 1943, has more than 1,500 patients, most of whom are from the Pacific theater.

Reconditioning of soldiers who have been wounded or suffered long periods of illness is an integral part of the army's program. This type of program is started at Winter as soon as the patient is able to exercise mildly in bed. When he is able to walk he begins physical exercises. This program progresses until the soldier can follow an eight hour daily schedule.

DEMAND GREATER AID TO INCREASE CORSET OUTPUT IN BRITAIN

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

LONDON, Oct. 12.—British corset manufacturers are demanding the release of skilled workers from the fighting forces and war industries so that they can increase their output. The Corset Guild of Great Britain, in a statement today, claims that women's health has deteriorated greatly as a result of the corset famine.

The shortage of maternity corsets is said to be worse today than it was two or three years ago, according to the guild, and retailers are unable to supply 5 per cent of the demand.

participation in games in which each man is observed closely by physicians. When a man is able to withstand a 15 mile hike without ill effect he is considered fit for duty. Because the reconditioning program is long and tedious, soldiers need things to occupy their hands and their minds during free time. This is where Tribune readers who desire to send gifts to service men in hospitals can be of assistance.

To send a Christmas gift to a service man in a hospital, clip the adjacent coupon and mail to the Christmas gift editor, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE. A service man's name will be sent to you during the early part of December, leaving plenty of time to obtain the gift and mail it to the hospital before Christmas.

AMERICAN POLES AWAITING F. D. R. IDEA ON BORDERS

Protest Any Land 'Grab' by Soviet Russia.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 12 (Special).—The board of directors of the Polish-American congress took the position at a meeting today that eastern Poland "should not be taken by Russia" and that the eastern boundary should remain as it was prior to 1939.

This position was announced by Charles Rozmarek of Chicago, president of the organization, as a reply was awaited from President Roosevelt to several detailed questions bearing upon Poland's integrity and sovereignty submitted by the Polish delegation, headed by Rozmarek, which was received by Mr. Roosevelt yesterday.

The delegation asked for assurance that America would defend the principle of the independence and territorial integrity of Poland, insist that no alien or puppet government be set up in the country, and resist having the population forcibly removed from Poland.

Represent Six Million. The Polish-American congress claims to represent six million Americans of Polish descent, one-fourth of whom have family origins which stem from eastern Poland. It is further estimated that one-tenth of the members of America's military forces are of Polish descent, a circumstance attributed to relatively large families.

While Rozmarek described the meeting of the board of directors as routine, and declined to enter into a discussion of President Roosevelt's position pending the receipt of more detailed information, he took issue with Prime Minister Churchill's reported attitude of permitting the eastern boundary to be redrawn.

His organization, he said, not only stands for a free and independent Poland with territory unimpaired, but it believes the Atlantic charter should be applied to Poland. He rejected any idea of a plebiscite, contending that such a plebiscite would not be free and, furthermore, would not be applicable—since, he maintained, the territory was rightfully Polish.

Ask More Territory. On the theory enunciated by Churchill that the Atlantic charter does not apply to the enemy, he went on in response to questions to say that Poland also was entitled to additional territory, naming as regions he had in mind East Prussia, Upper Silesia, the Vilno corner, and

Defying a Jinx

Dolores Hyland, who will be 11 today, defies Friday the 13th jinx by sitting under an open umbrella atop a ladder on a table on which rests a pair of shoes.

Today, Friday the 13th, may be a bogey to the superstitious, but for two little Chicago girls it's their second chance to celebrate on Friday the 13th since they were born Friday, Oct. 13, 1933.

Both proud of the supposedly unlucky day, they are Carole Sue Gastram, 4044 N. Bernard st., and Dolores Hyland, 7321 Yale av., 11 years old today.

Carole, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Gastram, considers herself lucky for being born just 15 minutes this side of Oct. 14, her mother says. There'll be two parties for her today—one this afternoon for children and one tonight for her family. Dolores, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Terence Hyland, will have her party Sunday. Her father is in the navy. The next October Friday the 13th will be in 1950.

the Teschen district. All these are historically Polish, he explained.

In reply to a question concerning Prime Minister Churchill's position, he replied: "We do not agree with Mr. Churchill. It seems strange that, if England went to war over the Polish corridor, the eastern half of Poland today should be annexed by Russia."

Rozmarek asserted the Polish government in exile was "representative" because it was "ready" for elections in Poland after the invading troops were withdrawn and it was supported by the Polish underground and people. Moreover, it was peacefully inclined and, he added, Poland in its long history, has never been guilty of aggression.

POLISH PREMIER JOINS EDEN IN 1ST UNITY TALK

Attacks Polish Rule

LONDON, Oct. 13 (Friday).—The Moscow radio aired a fresh denunciation of the Polish government in exile in London early today. It was in the form of a Moscow report of a mass-meeting of Polish youth in Lublin a few days ago at which a captain of the Lublin committee's security corps charged the capitulation of Warsaw by Lt. Gen. Tadeusz [Bor] Komorowski's home army was "premeditated treachery."

MOSCOW, Oct. 12 (AP).—Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk, who flew here today from London with other leaders of the Polish government in exile, conferred with British Foreign Minister Anthony Eden late today in the initial phase of negotiations for unity between the London and Moscow sponsored Polish groups.

[Both the Algiers and Marseille radios reported that Marshal Tito, leader of the Yugoslav Partisans, also was on his way to Moscow. London raised the possibility that formation of a Balkan-Polish federation might be under consideration.]

Settlement Expected. There was general belief that the differences between the soviet sponsored Polish committee of national liberation and the London government in exile would be settled some way before Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Marshal Stalin close their conferences.

It was understood that the Polish premier would see the highest British-soviet leaders before he again met the chief members of the Lublin committee with whom he failed to agree here two months ago.

No "Blank Check." Mikolajczyk, it was learned, carried no "blank check" from his cabinet for negotiations and even if a provisional agreement is reached at Moscow he must return to London and submit it to his associates for approval. On the other hand, Churchill was reported to be determined to see some basis for Polish harmony established before terminating his own visit here.

The highest sort of international stakes hang on the outcome of the negotiations, observers said. Foreign attention is riveted on this phase of British-soviet coordination. Many feel Churchill has committed his personal prestige on getting at least a tentative compromise.

'Y' EXECUTIVE TELLS WHY CAPTIVE YANKS NEED WAR FUND AID

Is our country coddling prisoners of war? The answer is no, according to Conrad Hoffman, supervisor of Y. M. C. A. war prisoners' aid.

He spoke yesterday before the Central Lions club.

He admitted enemy soldiers taken prisoner by the United States fare better than American boys in prison camps.

That is due, he explained, to the requirements of the Geneva convention, which provide that a warring nation should treat prisoners like its own soldiers.

"Since America feeds, clothes, and pays her soldiers better than any other nation, it works to the advantage of prisoners taken by this country," Hoffman said. "Likewise it works to the disadvantage of captured American boys."

"That's one of the reasons Americans should give liberally to the National War fund, which provides supplemental aid to American boys in prison camps."

DEWEY PARADE THRU THE LOOP SET FOR OCT. 25

A parade will take Thomas E. Dewey, Republican nominee for President, thru Chicago's loop district to give more citizens a chance to see him than can get into the Chicago Stadium a few hours later the night of Oct. 25.

Frank Kaitex, 38th ward committeeman in charge of the event, announced that the speaking time before Dewey's broadcast at 9 p. m. will be shared by the following: Richard J. Lyons, nominee for United States senator; Sen. Brooks, and John T. Dempsey, nominee for state's attorney, and other county and court nominees.

Gov. Green, who will introduce Dewey, was chairman of a meeting yesterday to discuss plans. Also present were Werner W. Schroeder, national committeeman for Illinois; State Chairman John F. Tyrrell, State Chairwoman Helen Griffin; County Chairman George M. Fisher; Leonard Reid, Dewey's cousin; Lyons, and Kaitex.

VOTERS DEMAND A FREE POLAND, REP. DAY AVERS

American voters want more assurance on Polish sovereignty than the eleventh hour election pledge of a square deal by Roosevelt, Rep. Stephen A. Day, candidate for reelection as congressman-at-large, told a 50th ward Republican rally meeting last night at 2323 Devon av.

"President Roosevelt suddenly decides to receive the committee of American leaders of Polish descent whom he had denied an interview for many months," Day pointed out.

Recalls Dewey Statement. "Now the President announces that Poland must be given a square deal. Gov. Dewey insisted on a square deal for Poland last Sunday. Millions of Americans feel the same way and they are also worrying about the fate of Finland, Greece, Latvia, Lithuania, Estonia, Romania, Hungary, Yugoslavia, Bulgaria, and other small nations."

Day declared the conference in Moscow between Stalin and Churchill "is so obviously aimed at the American election for President it is not hard to understand why only two met."

Amass Foreign Influence. The great interest of Stalin and the Communists in the present campaign, Day charged, "is positive proof of the real meaning of the agreements at Tehran. So long as Roosevelt is President these agreements stand. They will not bind Gov. Dewey."

"Can we not hold an American election for President without foreign influence?" Day asked. "Have we become so deeply involved in international intrigue that Stalin must tell us how to vote? Gov. Dewey has branded the Communist-New Deal political front for what it is. Stalin does not want him. A fake stage setting must be rigged up for the benefit of Roosevelt, who is in bad with our voters of Polish descent, and Stalin obliges until after the election."

WFA Frees 400,000 Cases of Beans for Civilian Use

The war food administration yesterday announced it had released 400,000 cases of canned beans for civilian use from stocks previously set aside for military or lend-lease shipments. An initial lot of 55,494 cases was offered to cannery, who will distribute them thru regular trade channels.

KELLY GIVES TIP ON WORLD BOSS: WHO BUT F. D. R.?

Mayor's So Excited That He 'Just Goes Nutty.'

In the 21st ward, which was carved in part from the old Bloody 20th and Bloody 19th wards, the Democrats last night held a rip roaring meeting which reached great emotional heights when Mayor Kelly dropped in and became the principal speaker.

The mayor made two appearances. In his first he declared himself as definitely nonpolitically minded. Most mayors, he said, just go along on national issues in a nonpartisan sort of way. In this case, however, said Mayor Kelly, his heart rules him. It won't let him view this thing politically.

Kelly Bows on Again.

"I'm for Roosevelt!" he shouted. On this high note he retired to the background. But in the midst of the talk by Ald. Ropa, Mayor Kelly reappeared.

"You'll have to pardon me," he said, "but when I get to talking about Roosevelt I just get nutty." The crowd roared. "I neglected to thank you for hearing me. And I want to say a thing or two more."

The crowd was noisily willing. "If it were not for Franklin D. Roosevelt," Kelly continued, "we'd be fighting the battle of New York City tonight—not the battle of Normandy. I want to say that if God is just as He always has been in the past, He'll not let a young, inexperienced man be elected President of the world, and that's what the next President of the United States is going to be."

Sheriff Mulcahy's talk—he was to have been principal speaker in the gathering at 1715 S. Ashland av.—was a little flat compared to the mayor's. He said forcefully, however, that the Democrats present with a clear conscience a platform that stands out against a background of public service.

Sabath Tackles Communism.
Rep. Sabath, in turn, tackled the communism issue. There is no Communist under the Democratic bed, he said.

This man Hillman (Sidney Hillman of the CIO political action committee, presumably) has, it is true, collected a few thousand dollars for the reelection of President Roosevelt. But he has not collected as much as a certain single Republican has contributed to the G. O. P. chest. [Sabath didn't name the Republican.]

In a much more decorous meeting at the Stevens hotel in the afternoon, 350 business men heard William J. Tuohy, Democratic nominee for state's attorney, praise Thomas J. Courtney, candidate for governor.

"The floors are a sight and the plaster's cracked! Do you think I want my husband to return to something worse than those foxholes he's been living in?"

HERE IS AN IDEA: ROUND TABLE OF ALLIED SOLDIERS

Stars and Stripes Offers Suggestion.
BY LARRY RUE.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
PARIS, Oct. 12. — The United States army newspaper, Stars and Stripes, published here, continued its campaign today to make the American G. I. international minded. "Leave It To Ivan, Tommy and Joe," an editorial advises as the basic solution for international problems. Stars and Stripes said:

"We would like to make a suggestion. How about shipping a bunch of Red soldiers to England and the United States? How about furloughing some British Tommies and Yanks to Russia? How about giving a flock of Ivans, Tommies, and G. I. Joes a chance to get together and swap ideas? How about letting them sit down over some beer or bitters or vodka or whatever happens to be around and talk over tomorrow?"

"Ordinary folks," the editorial says, manage to get along together and all of them want the same things. "a chance to work, enough to eat, a little fun and all the things that home, family and peace mean to a man."

big money. Cartels and colonies aren't in their line. They might not figure to a hairline a dicker on Danzig or the Dardanelles—but they play the cards face up on the table.

"Mutual suspicions and misunderstandings which cloud dealings between Russia and the rest of the world just wouldn't occur," the G. I. is assured.

"That's why we say—Let Ivan, Tommy Atkins and G. I. Joe get together. What they'd think—what they'd say—what they'd do—might give the right pitch to the guys with the frock coats, striped pants and silk hats."

NO MYSTERY IN MAKING GOOD COFFEE

By following three simple rules constant success is assured

Conversations about the preparation of coffee might lead one to believe that there are special tricks connected with it. However, this is not the case. The whole procedure can be summed up in three rules. First, be sure that the coffee-making utensil is absolutely clean. Second, measure the coffee and water accurately. Third, use a coffee that has a reputation for rich, uniform flavor.

Uniform flavor in coffee depends upon roasting every coffee berry evenly. To do this, however, the coffee must be roasted in small quantities instead of in bulk which is the common method.

This rule of roasting a little at a time has been followed by Hills Bros. Coffee, Inc., for years. By an exclusive process—"Controlled Roasting"—a blend of finest coffees obtainable passes through the roasters with the speed of operation and the temperature automatically controlled. Every berry is roasted evenly, none overdone, none underdone.

In spite of wartime conditions, this rich uniform quality is found in every vacuum-packed jar of Hills Bros. Coffee.

NEW YORK HOTEL

New York, Oct. 12 (Special).—Gov. Dewey, Republican Presidential nominee, and his wife this afternoon registered from their legal residence, an apartment in the Roosevelt hotel, to vote in the November election. He arrived here early this afternoon from Albany, N. Y., and reviewed a Columbus day parade.

Dewey also conferred with a Zionist leader and then declared himself in favor of "the reconstitution of Palestine as a free and democratic state."

Dewey said in a statement issued after his conference with Dr. Abba Hillel Silver of Cleveland, chairman of the executive committee of the National Zionist Emergency council, that "in order to give refuge to millions of distressed Jews driven from their homes by tyranny" he favored "the opening of Palestine to their unlimited immigration and land ownership."

LYONS ACCLAIMS STATE'S BALLOT SENT TO FRONTS

Cites Its Advantages Over Short Form.

Parents of men and women in military service were urged by Richard J. Lyons, Republican nominee for United States senator, last night to remember their sons and daughters will be able to vote on a "complete ballot" as a result of Gov. Green and the Illinois state Republican administration's winning fight against the federal botched ballot.

Lyons spoke before a large audience in the 37th ward headquarters at 488 N. Parkside av. He used a five foot blackboard on which to compare the full sized Cook county ballot, and the federal ballot covering only four offices—President, Vice President, United States senator, and member of congress—which, he asserted, "any New Deal opponent tried to force on your son and daughter in service. Not even names of candidates for these offices are on it."

Cites Ballot's Shortcomings.
Lyons emphasized the botched ballot would have prevented voters in service from expressing their choice for governor, state's attorney, and candidates for the state legislature.

BIG CROWD TO HEAR CLARE LUCE TONIGHT IN ORCHESTRA HALL

John T. WREATH LAYING AND MASS MARK
COLUMBUS DAY

The 422d anniversary of Columbus' discovery of America was observed yesterday with a wreath laying ceremony and a brief program at the Columbus monument in Grant park and with a solemn high mass under Knights of Columbus auspices at Assumption church, 313 W. Illinois st.

The Cook County council of the American Legion cooperated with Christopher Columbus post No. 1492 at the monument ceremony. Speakers were Anthony A. Altier, commander of the 1st district of the Legion's Illinois department, and Elliodor Libonati, Americanism chairman of the Legion for Cook county and the department of Illinois.

Auxiliary Bishop William D. O'Brien addressed the nearly 1,000 persons who attended the mass.

TO PATRONS OF THE WALDORF-ASTORIA:

In order to prevent possible disappointment and inconvenience, we take this means of bringing to your attention the fact that requests for Waldorf rooms are at present far beyond capacity.

When this condition changes, a further public announcement to that effect will be made. In the meantime, we shall appreciate your sympathetic understanding of our inability to accept all of the reservations offered us—that we must, in fact, frequently express regret and recommend postponement.

Sincerely,
Rufus Boone
President

In Washington and throught the world Chicago Tribune correspondents are alert to keep readers informed of every significant happening. Experienced in knowing how to get the facts, they cover the news first hand and report it steadfastly from the American viewpoint.

Never have a blind date with a blouse!

You wouldn't think of buying a blouse sight unseen. But, having seen a blouse—or a picture of one—you might be tempted to buy from mere appearance. Lady, resist that temptation!

You're buying precious few clothes these days—and all sorts of questions need answering.

Will it wash—and still hold that fragile pink color? Will it shrink? If so, how much?

need facts. And we think it's part of our job, at Good Housekeeping, to supply you with facts.

Many wonderful clothing innovations have appeared in the past few years. Some of these can hold their mystery, and you'll be none the worse off. You needn't know just how nylon is made from coal, for instance.

But you would like to know whether a color will come off on your slip or your skin... whether a fabric will dry-clean successfully... how a fabric will react to perspiration or to atmospheric gases.

For such things you must rely on the manufacturer's or salesperson's word. Happily, more and more service values are going into fabrics and workmanship, both. And we like to think Good Housekeeping has been partly responsible.

We're demons for facts

If that pink blouse you're looking at wears a Good Housekeeping Facts-First Fashion Tag, you can be sure it will wash without excessive fading or shrinkage. For we wouldn't permit the tag to go on it otherwise.

Before that blouse was a blouse at all—when it was simply bolts of material—samples of the fabric came to our Textile Library.

This Textile Library is unique. No other magazine even attempts anything of the kind.

Here swatches are collected and cataloged. Here you can see photographs of what happens to fabrics in Good Housekeeping Laboratories.

And you'll be mighty surprised at all that does happen.

When we investigate materials for their service values, we follow the same procedures that are used by the U. S. Bureau of Standards and other widely recognized laboratories... in order to help manufacturers in their drive toward better-quality fabrics.

There's no model inside a raincoat when we investigate the degree to which it is water repellent. Our checks are similar to this but they're made under controlled laboratory conditions.

To be sure your pink blouse won't fade excessively, we expose the fabric to the equivalent of from 20 to 40 hours' noonday sun. We check for seam strength, too, when it is an important factor.

If a material shrinks excessively, we consult with the manufacturer as to its improvement.

In examining a finished garment, we look at every detail—even to the thread. For if thread shrinks or breaks or changes color, your blouse loses some measure of wearability. And we're always thinking, as you are, of how a fashion will behave in actual use.

Now, obviously, we can't examine every blouse on the market. But we can help to establish good service values. We can encourage you to demand the facts. We can—and do—crusade for less mystery on articles with hidden values.

We crusade on your behalf

Such crusading, we feel, gives manufacturers a clue to your needs and desires. And it gives you the kind of help you have come to expect from Good Housekeeping Magazine.

Because we want you to count on that help, as long as Good Housekeeping is in print, we make you this earnest pledge:

That at no time, and not for any reason, or any profit, will any page of Good Housekeeping—editorial or advertising—trade unfairly on your trust.

There's no model inside a raincoat when we investigate the degree to which it is water repellent. Our checks are similar to this but they're made under controlled laboratory conditions.

To be sure your pink blouse won't fade excessively, we expose the fabric to the equivalent of from 20 to 40 hours' noon-

Why Housewives Can Still Get Food in Cans

Much of the food the housewife buys in cans today would not be available were it not for the new electrolytic tinning process developed by U.S. Steel. Our armed forces and lend-lease requirements have first call on the limited tin supply, but this revolutionary method of tinning saves two-thirds of the tin formerly used, and makes it possible also to provide a large proportion of cans needed for civilian foods. This electrolytic method produces an amazingly thin, uniform coating, and, with it, U.S. Steel alone has saved the nation more than five million pounds of tin to date.

WARN OF VAST DEMOCRAT-CIO RED VOTE PLOT

Business Men Demand a Poll List Check.

A flood of 200,000 to 300,000 registrations Tuesday created the critical and immediate need for volunteer workers to thwart plans to steal the election by a coalition of the Democratic machine, the CIO political action committee, and the Communists, leaders of the Business Men's committee said last night.

Vote frauds committed in Chicago's river wards in the past will be puny in comparison with the vote steal now plotted, according to Frank J. Durham, vice chairman of the group.

Lack Legal Residence.
Reports have been received of Democratic and CIO precinct captains telling war workers to register despite lack of bona fide legal residence in Cook county. The same scheme is said to have been used to get thousands of Negroes recently arrived from the south on the poll books. It is estimated there are nearly 400,000 new residents in Cook county, based upon the slight drop in population figures, despite the exodus of 450,000 to the fighting services.

"In 1940 when the B. M. C. started we had only the Democratic machine to fight," Durham said. "Then we mustered enough patriotic and civic minded men and women to clean out 50,000 names that did not belong on the registration lists."

Overwhelmed by the outpouring of persons to add their names to the permanent registration system Tuesday, election officials as yet have no accurate figures on the results. One sampling indicated 294,000 added registrations in 4,025 of the 4,588 precincts of the county.

Volunteers Needed Urgently.
Durham said that the need for B. M. C. workers to weed out "phony" registrations cannot be overstated. "Money won't do the job," he said. "What we need is men and women. The Democratic machine-CIO-Communist coalition is counting on a shortage of man power."

Men and women willing to help should call the B. M. C. headquarters (Har. 6515), he said, or come to the next training class at 12:30 p. m. Monday in room 357 at 53 W. Jackson Blvd.

to Ride on Fire Trucks
Seventy-four Chicago grade school youngsters will ride fire trucks to the Fire Prevention show in the Commonwealth Edison building, 72 W. Adams st., tomorrow morning to receive plaques awarded to their schools. The winning schools—33 public, three Catholic and one Lutheran—had a 100 per cent return of home fire hazard inspection forms filled in by pupils in a contest sponsored by the Chicago Association of Commerce. A quarter million forms were returned by Chicago schools.

Sentence Law Upset Starts Hunt to Return 10 to Prison

Ten convicts released from Stateville penitentiary from 12 to 18 months ago were being hunted by police last night on fugitive warrants calling for their return to prison.

Their unusual status, resulting from a tangle of judicial opinion, came to light yesterday when Chief of Detectives Walter Storms received the warrants by mail from Warden Joseph E. Ragen, Atty. Gen. Barrett, and T. F. Sullivan, state director of public safety.

All of the convicts, sentenced in 1941 and 1942, were freed on writs of habeas corpus last year by Judge John A. Sbarbaro while he was chief justice of the Criminal court. All had been sentenced under the first minimum and maximum sentence act. Under that act, for example, a violator received a basic statutory sentence of one to 10 years, with the judge fixing a maximum and a minimum term within the one to 10 year bracket.

New Act Now in Force.
However, the minimum and maximum sentence act was voided in 1942 by the Illinois Supreme court on constitutional grounds. A new one, meeting the court's objections, since has been enacted and is in force.

Because of the voiding of the original act, however, the 10 convicts were denied their freedom by the parole board after they had served the maximum of the sentences originally fixed. They petitioned Judge Sbarbaro for writs. He ordered them freed on the ground that they had completed maximum sentences fixed in good faith by trial judges and on the further ground that some had pleaded guilty on the promise of stated maximum sentences.

Must Serve Basic Sentences.
Atty. Gen. Barrett appealed to the Illinois Supreme court. He contended that the invalidation of the first minimum and maximum sentence act had wiped out the definite sentences fixed by trial judges and that the basic sentences—one to 10 years and so on—should prevail. The Supreme court recently upheld Barrett and ordered Judge Sbarbaro's writs expunged.

Those now being sought for return to prison and their offenses are: John Fowles, conspiracy; Woodrow Wilson, indecent liberties; Allen Bloch, confederate rans; Joseph Stankovic, burglary; John Pfister, attempted larceny; Herbert Howell, conspiracy; Raymond Markham, auto larceny; David Nelson, larceny; Herman Pack, conspiracy; and William Holst, burglary.

Some 1,500 cases in which maximum sentences had been imposed under the voided minimum and maximum act were affected by the Supreme court's recent ruling.

"There is only one evil", wrote Socrates, "that is ignorance". And ignorance it obviously is, which sometimes prompts the careless car-owner to say that all motor oils are alike, that there is no difference between any of them.

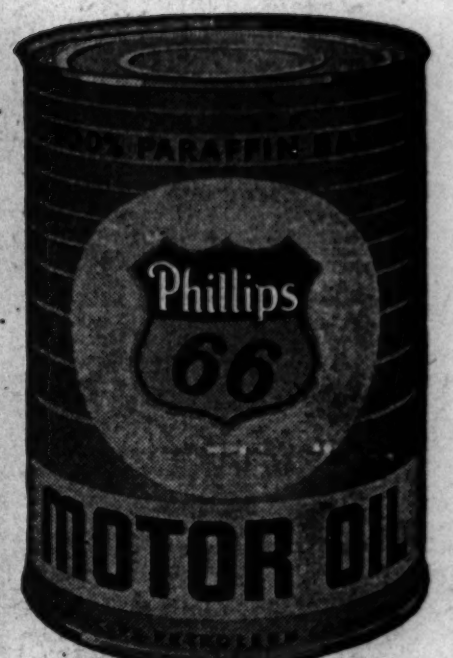

Once upon a time, when new cars could be freely purchased, when a car worn out too soon was a loss only to its wasteful owner and not to the nation—such a statement was merely irresponsible. Today, it may be definitely damaging to our need for conserving cars as a vital part of our wartime transportation system.

Oils vary in chemical composition, in stability, in freedom from harmful impurities, in lasting power, in ability to maintain viscosity, and in many other ways as well.

That is why all intelligent car owners naturally prefer a quality oil. But not all of them know the simple, easy way to be sure of getting it, as explained by the following facts:

Phillips offers a number of oils because car-owners' preferences vary almost as much as their cars and pocketbooks. But when you want our best oil, remember Phillips tells you frankly that Phillips 66 Motor Oil is our finest quality... the highest grade and greatest value... among all the oils we offer to average motorists.

Figure the cost per year of draining and refilling with quality oil every two months, as experts advise, as against the cost of using cheap oil; and it is plainly foolish economy to take a chance. So when making the seasonal change from summer-weight lubricant, get quality by getting Phillips 66 Motor Oil.

EX-NEWSIE, NOW PUBLISHER, BIDS TO BE RECORDER

Aims at Ending 16 Year Rule by Democrats.

[This is the sixth article of a series on candidates for local offices in the November election.]

BY GUY GENTRY.

Sixteen years of Democratic control in the office of county recorder of deeds, now held by Edward J. Kaindl, are challenged in this campaign by Raymond J. Peacock, Republican nominee, publisher of six northwest side community newspapers, who is campaigning on the basis of returning efficiency and economy to county government by defeating the Democratic machine.

Kaindl was appointed recorder in 1928 to fill out the term of Clayton F. Smith when the latter was elected president of the county board. Smith had supplanted a Republican in the 1928 election. The office has a salary of $9,000 annually and a patronage list of 191 jobs.

Peacock is a newspaperman who stuck to his trade. From a beginning at 30 years of age, when he sold papers after school, he has built a large and prosperous publishing business. His newspapers are printed in the neighborhood where he was born in 1889 and where he is acquainted personally with hundreds of business men and thousands of Chicago citizens.

Sets Tax Post Record.

Peacock is stocky in stature and natty in dress. Since his appointment two years ago as supervisor of collections of the retailers' occupational (sales) tax division in the Chicago area for the Illinois department of revenue he has broken all records for efficiency in that post.

Service Wedding

WAC Sgt. Mary Lou Peters of Grand Rapids, Mich., dotted khaki and donned traditional bridal white yesterday morning for her marriage to Staff Sgt. Theodore B. Lascari of Lodi, N. J., her fellow worker in Chicago WAC recruiting headquarters. All attendants were civilians. The couple met a few months ago when both were assigned to the same army activity. Friends on the recruiting staff were on hand with a rice beverage at the church, and also attended an informal reception in the bride's apartment, 428 W. St. James pl., in the evening. The Sergeant Lascari are honeymooning in the city and will return to duty at 166 W. Van Buren st. Monday morning.

Altho the tax was reduced from 3 to 2 per cent, collection of delinquent accounts in the two year period ending June 30, 1944, was greater than in any previous biennium.

Peacock has been 39th ward committeeman for eight years, bringing it to 10th in Republican strength among Chicago's 50 wards. He was 7th district congressional nominee in 1934 and county assessor nominee in 1938. He is married and lives at 3757 Keeler av.

Alderman for 8 Terms.

Prohibition turned Recorder Kaindl toward a public career. Born in Chicago in 1885, he became cashier and assistant manager of the U. S. Brewing company and later operated his own retail liquor business until 1917, when he was elected alderman of the 31st ward, a post he held for six terms.

Kaindl left the council in 1931 to run for city assessor. Altho defeated, he was appointed city collector by Mayor Cermak and re-named by Mayor Kelly. He held that post until appointed recorder in 1934.

He is described as "rotund, fiery, and a forceful speaker." He has been 31st ward committeeman since 1930. He resides at 921 N. Sacramento blvd.

CHINESE GENERAL KILLED.

CHUNGKING, China, Oct. 12 (AP)—Gen. Wang Chao, 43, was killed in action Sept. 9 in the battle of Lunging in Hunan province. It was disclosed officially today. Gen. Wang fought at Shanghai in 1927 and later participated in the Hunan battle of Changsha, and Changchi.

DEWEY DEMOCRATS IN WISCONSIN DRAW STATE-WIDE BACKING

Wisconsin old line Democrats, organized to oppose reelection of President Roosevelt, are operating on a state-wide basis, with headquarters in Milwaukee, they reported yesterday to the anti-New Deal American Democratic national committee's headquarters, 105 S. La Salle st.

The organization, sponsored by the American Democratic group, is a Democracy for Dewey club. It has been incorporated, with Edward A. Quinn of Kenosha, chairman; John Zimmerman, Milwaukee, vice chairman, and William Callahan, Milwaukee, treasurer. State offices have been opened on the ground floor at 637 N. Broadway, Milwaukee.

"We are all real Democrats," said Zimmerman, "and our main interest is the eventual reorganization of the Democratic party as it was before the New Deal wrecked it. We believe the first thing to do is to defeat President Roosevelt in his bid for a fourth term, and we regard the Democrats for Dewey club as the vehicle we must ride to reach that end."

Adm. Nimitz has announced that landings on the China coast are imminent. Only by going into China, he said, can we come to grips with the main Japanese strength and find enough room so that the air forces which will be available upon the defeat of Germany can start working over the Japanese home islands.

The admiral says that "we" are going to make the landings in China. He doesn't say whether "we" is the American forces who have fought the war in the Pacific alone to date, or whether the European empires who are letting us win back their stake in the orient are to share the job and its hazards and cost.

The British and European allied nations and their possessions support an aggregate white population of 127 1/2 million persons—about equal to that of the United States. Poland and Finland, which are prostrate, are excepted, as are such doubtful co-belligerents as Italy, Romania, and Bulgaria, and such countries as Greece and Yugoslavia, which are not going to bother about liberating anybody but themselves.

Even at the outbreak of war in 1939 these countries had more than 7 million 200 thousand trained men in their armies and reserves. It is to be doubted that they have any fewer now, even considering the fact that about a million and a half Frenchmen of military age were carried into Germany as captive laborers. The British and their white dominions, which had only 572,000 men under arms in 1939, now have armies totaling several times that number and, as Mr. Churchill has had occasion to point out, their losses have not been anything like as heavy as they were in the last war.

In China we shall be encountering a very large Japanese army—at least 2 million men. Surely Adm. Nimitz does not expect us to meet it alone. We might, to be consistent with the altruism that has induced us to carry the whole burden of the Pacific war so far, think of putting up about 50 per cent of the men necessary for the job, but our European allies whose colonial stakes give them a primary concern in defeating the Japs ought to be obliged to shoulder their share of the burden.

All they have done so far, however, is to announce that they are going to hold what they do not even have—their colonial territories. They have preoccupied themselves elsewhere when the amphibious forces were being organized, but that has not stopped Mr. Churchill and his ministers from speaking their imperial views every now and then, nor has it prevented one so recently arrived in the big league as Gen. De Gaulle from insisting upon France's rights as a "great power." If these gentlemen want their so-called rights they had better do something to earn them.

And we have a few expectations from Russia, too. Lend-lease kept the Russians going when their own industrial plant couldn't, and our war with Japan undoubtedly kept the Japs off Russia's neck at a time when Russia was driven and desperate. We have a right to expect a strong Russian attack upon the Japs in Manchuria and Russian bombing of Japan to assist us in fighting our way into China. These suggestions are made here and now because nobody in Washington seems disposed to make them.

SOLDIERS' LETTERS.

An inquiry that can profitably be undertaken when congress goes back to work relates to the disclosure that somebody is censoring political views stated in soldiers' letters. A Chicago airman's account of how his letters home were mutilated by censorship was submitted by THE TRIBUNE to the office of censorship in Washington, which passed it for publication without comment.

It is conceivable that some censor may have been much too overzealous, but it is reasonable to believe that he would not have exceeded his responsibility of checking correspondence only for military security unless somebody had instructed him to. Either way there has been a grave abuse of authority, and it is up to congress to find out who is at fault and whether any general order was issued in Washington that service men were to be denied the right to express themselves on domestic and international political questions.

The army flyer whose views were limited to what the censorship thought it proper the folks back home should hear said what he had written had nothing to do with military affairs, "so it must have been political censorship that made the deletions." He didn't discover what had been done until he came home on leave, but the treatment of his mail was only one of the surprises in store for him. He said he would never have guessed in Europe that the jailbird Browder would be found helping run the New Deal campaign, or that Sidney Hillman's clearance should be found necessary by Mr. Roosevelt. Apparently the censorship is working two ways, restricting exactly what the men in uniform may hear from home and what the folks at home may hear from them.

The facts support a judgment that the New Deal's supposed solicitude for the civil rights of soldiers is a good deal less valid than proponents of the so-called federal ballot, which was a fake, would seek to convey. The New Dealers don't want to hear from the service men, either by mail or thru ballots. If you could read the mail from overseas, you'd find out why, but the censorship is seeing to that.

REPORTERS AND STRAWBERRIES.

The British Trade Union Congress, which is the combined AFL, CIO, and railroad brotherhoods of Great Britain, has announced that reporters who cover its annual conference next week must be members of one of its affiliated unions, the National Union of Journalists.

Obviously the primary purpose of the rule is not to force the unionization of newspaper reporters, since it would affect only one or two men on each newspaper's staff. The trade unionists want to control the reports of their meeting. It is not merely that membership in the union would indicate that the reporter was sympathetic with the objectives of the Trades Union Congress and the Labor party, which it supports and controls. The union reporter who wrote critically of the proceedings of the congress would do so at the hazard of discipline by his union.

This is a phenomenon that has as yet unfortunately failed to make its appearance in the United States. William Green of the AFL is regularly interviewed by reporters for communist newspapers, whom he detests as thoroughly as does Congressman Dies, and Philip Murray of the CIO and Sidney Hillman of the PAC by representatives of newspapers which to them are anathema.

The British trade union movement resembles that in the United States principally in that both are free. In most other respects British unionism stems from that of the European continent. Its so-called liberalism is of the authoritarian variety, dedicated to bestowing benefits, by compulsion if necessary, from the top rather than in protecting individual rights so that men may win their own benefits.

That is a tendency that has crept in recent years into the American trade union movement and has been accentuated by the present political campaign. These so-called liberals are not interested in the Bill of Rights. The liberties that they seek to bestow are like the Communist's strawberries: Comes the revolution you'll eat them whether you like them or not.

WHEN MR. STALIN MEETS MR. CHURCHILL.

Not since Richard II. met Watt Tyler after the sack of London has an odder pair gone into conference than Winston Churchill and Josef Stalin. One is a servant of the crown. The other is a regicide. One represents a solid body of English tradition. The other is a Transcaucasian revolutionary who began his political experiences with a bit of bank robbery and brought them to a climax with the judicial assassination of his revolutionary associates. One thinks of murder as a foul crime; the other regards it as a fine art in the work of government.

These two, the Englishman and the Georgian, dissimilar as they are, have a treaty for the conduct of war and for the government of Europe after the war. It was a 20 year treaty between a man who doesn't like communism and a man who doesn't like Englishmen. If there were no other arrangements for post-war Europe these two men would undertake to make arrangements if they could contain their antipathies and bring their essential interests into agreement and keep them there.

They have difficulty in restraining their natural inclinations. When they meet their associates have uneasy moments wondering when they will rasp each other and create a breach. Aside from their personal feelings they represent a long tradition of conflict which obtrudes even when they join forces to fight a common enemy they unite in hating. When it became necessary to stop the Nazis in Persia the British and the Russians went in together, watching each other's every step. Persia was an old ground of controversy when Kipling was writing that no truce should be made with Adam-zed—the bear that walks like a man.

The two traditionally conflicting allies managed a condominium in Persia and took over their spheres of influence, continuing to watch each other. Stalin was on his own soil, in a manner of speaking, when he met Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill in a Persian garden. He had taken part of what was regarded as his own. Britain had taken the other part. If both can let go at once Iran will reemerge as a part of the post-war world.

In China Britain has been unable to do anything and Russia unwilling. Therefore, they have not met in the field of controversy in which the English supported Japan and enabled the Japs to build up the power to throw the English out and take the possessions from which America is dislodging them step by step and island by island.

In the eastern Mediterranean the conflict is older. Mr. Churchill is now hurrying toward Athens as Mr. Stalin drives toward Belgrade, each watching the other's advances and motives. Every time Russia has run a long arm down to Istanbul and the Bosphorus something has happened, and most of the time that something was Great Britain. By agreement in the other war Russia was to have gained its point at last, but Lenin intervened. His revolution took Russia out of the war and the agreement fell to the ground in consequence. Then it was France that Britain beat into the disputed territory.

Mr. Churchill and Mr. Stalin are robust and practical men. In spite of their antipathies, they may find some relish in an encounter which brings them together. Stalin has inherited the imperialism of the czars, as well as the communism of Lenin. Both the Englishman and the Georgian are heavy hitters and their conferences give the occupant of the Kremlin an opportunity for the famous spreads which, even as a breakfast, take nearly four hours of the negotiators' time. These are gargantuan occasions and Mr. Churchill is fully able to hold his own there, as he has on other occasions in the council chamber. When these two men meet the facts of life are fully understood and neither is deceived by the other's smiling, blue eyes. Whatever they agree upon, the Polish question being one of their toughest nuts, will be based upon hardpan.

There has been a delay on the west front while Eisenhower arranges another of those swinging doors which catch a bum coming and going as in Normandy or the old time bar.—Detroit News.

GEOGRAPHY LESSON.

The sprawling line of Japanese islands from the Ryukyu chain to the Kuriles is the most astonishing arrangement of places completely surrounded by water in the world. The four large land masses of Japan are flanked by about 3,000 other islands, which stretch from tropical to sub-arctic latitudes. In this Nipponese fence for the front yard of Asia there are only two gaps thru which there is easy sailing—in the Ryukyus, 100 miles wide, and in the Kuriles, 38 miles wide.

This explains why the Ryukyus and Kuriles are getting plenty of neutralizing attention from American bombers.

The vast and almost empty expanse of ocean east of the Philippines and south of Japan, which may be the scene of the final encounter between the fleets of the Stars and Stripes and the Rising Sun, has been nameless for centuries. This column, a few months back, stated the need for naming it, and suggested that Sea of Magellan would be appropriate. We communicated this idea to the National Geographic society, which agreed that prompt baptism was in order. On the latest map issued by the society to its members, the opportunity has been grasped. The name, Philippine Sea, has been neatly lettered across the Sea of Magellan.

The confluence of the Moselle river with the Rhine, at Coblenz, has a place name also it is never shown on maps. This is the Deutsches Eck—the German Corner—to Rhinelanders. It is marked, on the east bank, by the fortress of Ehrenbreitstein, and on the west, at the mouth of the Moselle, by a massive memorial to Kaiser Wilhelm I, whose statue faces downstream toward Bonn and Cologne.

Not many miles away from the Kaiser on his high bronze horse, and close to the town of Andernach, there is—or was before Hitler came—a large memorial to a French general—Lazare Hoche of the revolutionary armies. He was campaigning there when he died, and the memorial seems to have been erected during the Napoleonic occupation of the Rhineland.

Another historical oddity of this sort may be found in Coblenz—a fountain erected by the last French prefect in 1812 "in memory of the campaign against Russia." Beneath this inscription there is another, also in French: "Seen and approved by the Russian commandant of Coblenz, Jan. 1, 1814." A rare stroke of satire in granite!

AUTUMN BONFIRE.

The flaming maples, older than us all, know their appointed time, yet we delay Thru all the golden time of early fall Until a deep, thick blanket marks the day When rains are near; then on a moonless night We harvest every leaf in one great mound. A careful stalk, and then in leaping light The altar of our toil is glory-crowned! The trees loom strangely as the flames arise And sparks are brighter than the stars we know; The smoke in cotton billows blows the eyes While cherry embers wink in friendly glow, And we who watch the last spark disappear Seem once more children of a long dim year.

When You Say That, Smile.

It is being bruited about the hallway that a service man, home on 30-day furlough after 22 months in the toughest of Pacific actions, approached the Rasputin of the local ration board for his legal gallon-a-day gasoline ration and was sternly told he could have only eight gallons. When he reproached, the Rasputin made the slight error of dusting off that one about "Don't you know there's a war on?" The service man reached across the desk, seized the duly constituted authority by the neck, seized him over the intervening obstacles to the middle of the floor, and shook him until his dentures rattled against walls and windows like a small hailstorm. Citizens would like to know how you go about getting a Congressional Medal of Honor for a real hero.

THOSE GOLDEN DAYS.

Do you now and then long for the old, golden days When the urge to be thrifty was ours, And we were not obsessed with an imbecile craze For mechanics, and gadgets, and showers? When the old swimmin' hole was then quite good enough, With its surface so calm, and pale yellow, And the slippery bottom was not a bit rough, Tho the mud sometimes stuck to a fellow? When we didn't awake from our slumbers till four, And by nine had extinguished the candles? When we viewed the whole world that we so much adore From the vantage of rigid plow handles? Did you say that those days you would nevermore see, And for them you would nevermore sigh? Gosh, I guess there is something the matter with me, For the fact is—well—neither would I!

W. L. Hudson.

Uncle Lemuel says proof of the gift of gab these days is to be able to purchase two cigars at one time.

If the man power shortage gets any worse, some concerns may have to put their vice presidents to work.

I've sat and seen my husband At A-lose, and A-lose, and A-lose, To comprehend why on Just ONE we've to rely on A-gain, and A-gain, and A-gain!

Friend of Yanks' Kin

By Sally Joy Brown

[This department answers questions related to help available to relatives of service men, in the column or by mail, if stamped, addressed envelopes are sent to Sally Joy Brown.]

Mrs. O. D. writes: "My husband was killed in service shortly after Pearl Harbor. Since that time, I have been receiving a government pension for myself and the children. I am now contemplating remarriage and wonder how that will affect the pension. Can you give me any information?"

A pension or compensation being paid to a widow for herself and a veteran's children is terminated by her remarriage. The children then become entitled to the rate of pension or compensation which is provided for those cases in which there is no widow surviving. In other words, if you have one child and your present pension is $65 a month, after your remarriage, your child will be eligible for the payment made in a case in which there was no widow but one child, or $25.

CORRECTING AN INFERIORITY COMPLEX.

FROM time immemorial, physicians have emphasized the importance of thinking well of oneself. Apparently the Greeks recognized the state of mind which we now call an "inferiority complex." What it amounts to is lowered self-regard. In consequence of this, a person is timid, and shrinking into the individual to meet the problems of life.

The one who devalues his own capacities is likely to feel so unworthy, so insignificant, that he will attempt to isolate himself from those about him. These unfortunate avoid companionship. As a rule, they have one or two half-friends. Toward the rest of the world, resentments which have no basis in fact, no tangible cause, may be exhibited.

Many of these sufferers develop inner tensions and overwhelming anxieties. Escape seems imperative and recourse may be had to alcohol or to the exhibition of a thousand symptoms of illness which do not exist. The sense of helplessness is abysmal and any situation with which they are unable to cope may be translated into physical sensations such as choking, palpitation of the heart, trembling, blushing, or sweating.

As we can well understand, these people need assistance. When tested for intelligence, they may respond with evidence of a high IQ, even a mastery of certain fields. But they are never able to do justice to themselves because they are in deadly fear of rebuffs and slights. Reassurance and praise are moral forces for good. If we can inflate the patient's estimate of himself, he may emerge from his plight. We have all seen those who, under encouragement, have blossomed into normalcy. Successful accomplishment is the best guarantee to the sufferer that he does possess worth while talents which are of value to others and to society in general.

I have in mind a schoolmate of really great ability. I believe he represented about the worst case of inferiority which I have any knowledge. When he was asked to join a Greek letter society he was seized with panic and nearly collapsed. His sensations were fear: "No, no, I was finally persuaded to join the Phi Kappa, but I have a fairly dignified affair, filled him with terror.

He began to emerge from his shell when he was made secretary. The first time he read the minutes no one in the room could hear as his voice was so scarcely a whisper. Within a few months, however, his tones were clear and every syllable was distinct. Even then we all recognized his remarkable command of English. By the time he reached his senior year he had accepted a class office and took part in the commencement play.

I looked him up the other day in Who's Who and counted nine scholarly publications to his credit. He is as completely at home on the lecture platform as he is in his own library. If I recall correctly his trouble began with an Amazonian schoolmarm who selected routinely one or two students to hold up to derision. She succeeded completely in his case. Her biting sarcasm struck him daily.

There is a vast difference between the type of self-esteem which is normal and healthy, and stupid cockiness which every one abhors. But few of us realize the catastrophic calamity that may come to one who is sensitive and who takes deeply to heart every frown of fortune.

HARD TO LEARN.

T. N. writes: I am 24 years old and have difficulty in grasping my work. When I finally understand, I can do it well, but this takes a long time. What should I do for this condition?

REPLY.
Nothing. You are probably slow to acquire a new procedure. Once you have learned it, you will be able to do it. Dexterity can be stimulated by learning to play a musical instrument—piano, saxophone, violin, etc.

DAMAGED NERVE.

T. H. writes: Is there any hope of seeing, if the optic nerve is paralyzed?

REPLY.
Not if the structure is completely out of commission. Temporary pressure may be relieved.

MUSCLE DISORDER.
G. H. writes: Is fibrositis the same as arthritis?

REPLY.
No. Fibrositis involves muscles chiefly; arthritis, all the structures about a joint.

LOOKING FOR AN OLIVE BRANCH

Front Views & Profiles

By MARCIA WINN

The Audience, 1944.

It started as long ago as the two national political conventions this summer. The American people began to release their long pent-up enthusiasm. They began to release it by clapping and cheering. They did it then, and have continued to do it, with such enthusiasm that you feel they must have been very hard up for something to clap about for a long, long time.

It started, of course, with the Republican convention, since it was held first. The orators cried: "The country is in a worse state than it has ever been before!"

"Wherever!" "Yeah-man!" went the crowds as they thundered their applause.

Next came the Democrats, using the same style of oratory but adapted to their different purposes: "All over the world men die today!"

"Wherever!" "Yeah-man!" went the crowds. "Yeah-man!" Their delight was uncontrollable.

With rare exceptions every speaker painted the state of the nation and the state of the world as desperate. The more desperate he painted it, the more specific and unruly his earned applause. You get the impression the convention hall was full of sadists, just unutterably happy to welcome all prophets of doom.

This set us to wondering. Were they applauding a woeful thing because it was well phrased, or it was well phrased because it was woeful? Or would they clap no matter what was said?

We naturally thought it a mid-summer phenomenon that would pass with the heat, the flies, the yellow moss rose, and the ripening tomatoes, but it has not passed. It has not even hesitated. Any interested person can tune in on his radio to any political speech these days, check the applause, and compare it with the words that preceded it.

Consider a few trifles from Mr. Roosevelt's address to the teamsters: "You remember the closed banks and the bread lines . . . the blank despair of a whole nation . . ."

Apparently every man there remembered it, and remembered it happily, deliciously, delightfully, they roared and cheered until the microphone stuttered.

"These peace building tasks were forced upon us . . . and they were forced by a Republican administration."

This, if true, is deplorably sad, but did the audience sigh, moan, or go tetch-tetch? Not at all. The gentlemen cheered. It was wonderful. Peace was botched.

"In fact, millions of us are more than 11 years older than when we started . . . in 1933 . . ."

Again the cheers, wild, hoarse, radiant. Now just what is so nice about being 11 years older? You may be certain almost every man in the audience would willingly forget his age—in fact, would be elated if any one were to tell him he looked 11 years younger.

GAS FOR VOTERS.

Zion, Ill., Oct. 3.—Our son writes from the front lines in France: "Dad, how many times a week can I use the car when I get back? Mom, you find out and let me know, just for fun."

What a heartbreak! Gas is not for voters, veterans, home owners, or law abiding citizens, but only for those with the amount of money necessary to buy a car.

My husband's business is dependent on his car, and he never has enough. Our son sold his car when he entered the service and how can I tell him that gas is not for him if he can't afford a car when the war is over?

Why couldn't any voter or rationed a small amount of gas if he designates the car of some friend or relative who will use that gas for the voter's needs? If Mr. Dewey would put that in his platform such common sense might win him the election. We all know there is plenty of gas for the politician.

FLORA REVIS.

THE ROAD TO ADVANCEMENT.

Chicago, Sept. 26.—I read with interest the advertisement by the McGraw Hill Publishing company, in which Mr. James McGraw Jr. points out the need to rebuild Europe as a modernized economy, such as we have here. He insists that a higher standard of living will prevent future wars and discord.

Is Europe ready for such an advancement? Does she desire it? And would she accept it as a child would a penny or a piece of candy? Our experience in America is a good example for any nation to follow.

We were not given any of the advantages we now have by some foreign nation, as an aftermath of war. We worked diligently to obtain them. Mr. McGraw would start Europe off on rebuilding and economic spree such as perhaps would be unheard of if they were allowed to map their own destiny.

I say hands off of Europe after the war. We can cooperate with them and give them the benefit of our experience, but, please, let them do their own thinking and planning. In that way alone is true advancement.

UN-AMERICAN ABILITY.

New Berlin, Pa., Oct. 3.—The only thing that will defeat Mr. Roosevelt is the enormity and un-Americanism of the fourth term.

Mr. Roosevelt has been able to divide, bewilder, and perplex the American people and keep them so, but he can't fool anybody one minute about a fourth term.

The fourth term is un-American, outrageous, unseemly, and immoral. Even Mr. Roosevelt does not have the hardihood to defend it. Ask him.

A. A. SKIFFER.

SAME REEF.

Camp Phillips, Kas., Sept. 25.—It is next to impossible lately to pick up a newspaper without running across a good, healthy, wholehearted beef concerning the newly proposed "point system" of demobilizing our army. Without going into detail, this system proposes to release men from the army according to the time spent in service, the time spent overseas, and the time spent in combat.

As you can see, so good, but what about the draftees who are over 35?

Pvt. J. ANONYMOUS.

VALIDITY OF A WILL.

Chicago, Oct. 11.—We have just had a lively discussion of the validity of a will made at the expiration of a last will and testament. Does a will remain valid so long as another is not drawn up to replace it?

I. O.

1. There is no time limit during the testator's life.

2. Yes, as far as merely lapse of time is concerned, but special facts, such as a subsequent marriage, could revoke the will.

ROOSEVELT vs. ROOSEVELT

"All that any government can possibly undertake is to help make sure that the facts are known and fairly stated. No country where thought is free can prevent every fireside and home within its borders from considering the evidence for itself and rendering its own verdict."

WILLKIE'S LACK OF FAITH IN F.D.R. TOLD BY WRITER

Says Al Smith Distrusted Roosevelt, Too.

BY JOHN O'DONNELL.
[Washington Columnist of the New York Daily News.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 12.—Wendell Willkie and Al Smith had one thing in common.

Both disliked, and distrusted Franklin D. Roosevelt as a human being. In private conversations, when they were "thinking out loud" among friends, they didn't hesitate to say so.

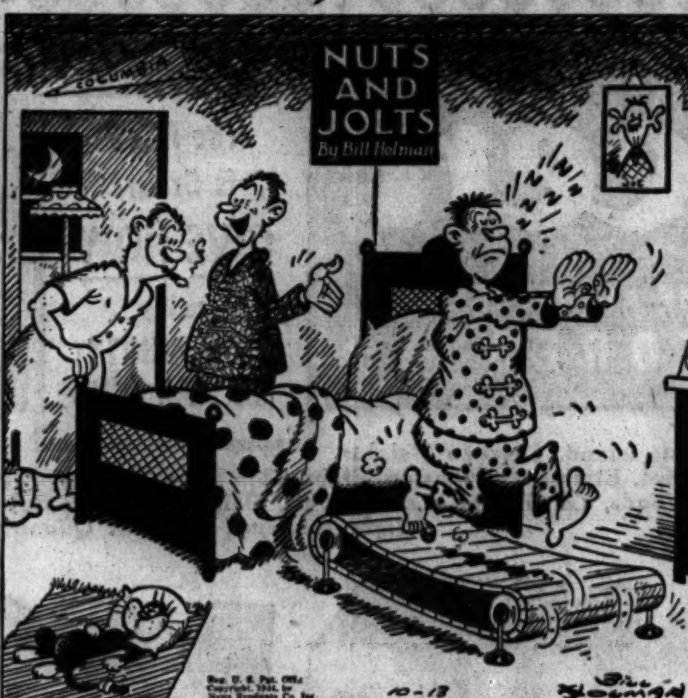

The great and warm hearted Al had a burning, bitter contempt for the one time friend whom he persuaded back in '28, to make the successful campaign to succeed him as governor of the state of New York.

Roosevelt won of course, and never invited Al Smith into the executive mansion. Incidentally, neither did Roosevelt's successor, Herbert Lehman. By one of the twists of fate, it was as the guest of Gov. and Mrs. Dewey that Al returned to the executive mansion for the first time since '28 and prowled happily thru his old home, regaling the guests at the small dinner party with well remembered anecdotes of family life in Albany during his gubernatorial career.

Laughing Behind His Back.

Willkie's dislike and distrust of Roosevelt came later and was never so deep and emotionally dominating as that of Smith's. But the burly, likable Hoosier (whatever you may think of his policies) discovered as Smith did that F. D. R. was cynical and blandly making a monkey of him for F. D. R.'s private ends—and laughing at him behind his back. That was the time when Willkie quit accepting Roosevelt "command invitations" to come to the White House for a "conference."

Willkie after his defeat in '40 was

Now we won't have to chase after Charley when he walks in his sleep!

sincere and honest in his proposal of leading the "loyal opposition" and backing up F. D. R.'s lend-lease and other war proposals. The idea that F. D. R. wanted to put across both at home and abroad was that his plans had undivided support. And Willkie was given the idea that he was to be called in for White House consultation and frankly told what was in the President's mind and what the proposed policies were.

Well Staged Show.

That just didn't happen. As time went on, Willkie got calls to come to the White House. Then came that oft-repeated show that F. D. R. puts on so well. The arrival of the visitor was duly heralded in the press. The visitor was ushered into the President's study. And then would come a half hour of light and airy chat about the weather, health of mutual friends and at times long and merry anecdotes, told with Rooseveltian gusto.

But—and this happened over and over again—the President wouldn't bring up, and the visitor couldn't bring up, the vital issues of the day. Then Willkie, like so many other visitors, was ushered out to meet the White House reporters. White House etiquette prohibited Willkie from saying what was discussed. ["That must come from the President."] But Willkie and others brought into the same trap frequently observed later in private: "I'm damned if I know what he wanted me down for. We only talked about the weather."

Well, the newspapers the next day could tell them. The headlines proclaimed, "F. D. R. Confers With Willkie." The nation naturally thought that F. D. R. actually was talking things over with the leader of the "loyal opposition"—which he wasn't. The citizens who had faith in Willkie backed up the later Roosevelt plans thinking that they at least had the backing of Willkie, perhaps were in fact of Willkie origin.

Angry and Resentful.

And the angry and resentful Willkie had no way of blocking this slick move by F. D. R. So he just quit going to the White House. There were calls and invitations but very courteously sidestepped—"he knew the President was a tremendously busy man and if there was any situation in which he might help perhaps it would save time all around for the President to relay the situation to him thru former Justice Byrnes, director of war mobilization."

Now of course the ardent fourth-termers are trying to suggest—that if he had lived Willkie would have endorsed Roosevelt for a fourth term.

Well, we certainly didn't get that impression when we last talked with Willkie a couple of months ago or in later conversations with his friends.

Candidate of Party.

Our impression then was that shortly before the election, Willkie would come out with a not too enthusiastic endorsement for Dewey. After all, the wounds of the 1940 convention fight went pretty deep, altho Dewey loyally campaigned for Willkie, denouncing the third term proposition.

It would be an announcement from W. W. to the effect: "Of course, I shall support and vote for the candidates of my party—the Republican party."

Legion Auxiliary Ex-Head Backs Benson Candidacy

Adding her endorsement of State Sen. Arnold P. Benson, Republican nominee for secretary of state, to that of other past state presidents of the American Legion Auxiliary, Mrs. W. Glen Suthers declared that "every home in Illinois which flies a service flag has a friend in Arnold Benson. We in the American Legion know of the quiet but effective work Sen. Benson has done for his fellow veterans of World War I."

Democratic Bloc in AFL Indorses Tuohy in Race

Indorsement of William J. Tuohy, Democratic candidate for state attorney, was announced yesterday by the committee of American Federation of Labor leaders in Illinois who are supporting the Democratic national ticket. A statement by William Quirk, committee chairman, said Tuohy's 11 year record as assistant state's attorney and commended him as considerate of labor.

SIT STRIKE OF 200 DELAYS WORK ON DEVICES FOR B-29

Two hundred employees of the Minneapolis-Honeywell Regulator company, 1135 N. Cicero av., sat down for three hours in the plant last night to protest against a reduction of their work week to 55 from 60 hours.

The entire night crew, building automatic pilots for the B-29 Super Fortress, was idle from 9 p. m. to midnight. At that hour Thomas McDonald, a vice president of the company, prevailed upon the strikers to return to work and submit their grievances to negotiation.

These new "humps," built at a cost of nearly five million dollars, provide one part of the answer to the question—"How can the railroads, with less equipment and a shortage of manpower, handle the biggest transportation job in history?" The Burlington is proud to be on the team of America's railroads which is sweating out the answer. NEW DEAL PAID $2.97 FOR 1 RAT, BRICKER AVERS

Tells of OPA Official's
Slap at Pastor.

Eugene, Ore., Oct. 12 (Special).—Gov. Bricker tonight cited instance after instance in which he said this New Deal system has been responsible for warped judgments and absurd results.

Concluding a five speech day in Oregon, the Republican candidate for Vice President used the specific examples in renewing his recommendation for a reorganization and streamlining of federal government functions.

He related these incidents:
"On a recent federal rat catching campaign in New Orleans, the cost was $2.97 per rat. You see what I mean. A good fat chicken might be worth $2.97 when buttered for the skillet. But you would think of paying $2.97 for a single rat except a person who is caught in a system?"

"Guard" U. S. Buildings.
"A survey showed that some 7,500 able bodied men and women are being used to guard government buildings in Washington. Many of these people have heard of the man power shortages. But they are caught in a system."

"In Philadelphia, OPA agents invaded a woman's home without a warrant, ransacked the premises in search of evidence later used as a basis for indictment against her, and held her behind locked doors for four hours after she was arrested. You see, the system sometimes breeds something of the Gestapo in the bureau."

"When a clergyman requested additional gasoline, the OPA official sent him the following reply, 'Your work as pastor of a church is not fundamental to the war effort. I am not concerned about the churches. I am concerned about getting gasoline for the men who work in shops. The quicker the churches close the better it will be anyway.'"

"3 Million Bureaucrats.
Bricker continued, "Not only are the 3 million bureaucrats stuffed into corners and hallways to the point of suffocation, but the bureaus themselves are piled one on the other until they have spread into cities all over the country."

"Here are some random figures: The department of state has 23 principal divisions and 53 minor divisions. The department of interior has about 27 divisions. The department of agriculture has approximately 31 separate divisions."

"This patchwork of bureaus must be taken apart. The government must be reorganized and governmental functions must be streamlined. This is another reason why this nation needs a change of leadership."

FORESEES CAR OF MAGNESIUM AND ALUMINUM

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 12 (AP).—A small, light weight automobile, built largely of aluminum, duralumin, and magnesium, on an 80 inch wheelbase, was disclosed today by Ray Russell, president of the Detroit Industrial Designers' association, as a post-war possibility.

Russell, who engineered and built the vehicle, described it as a "gad-about," weighing 1,100 pounds, capable of traveling 40 miles on a gallon of gasoline.

Russell did not disclose production or delivery costs.

ALLMAN ORDERS NEW INQUIRY ON DEATH OF PRIEST

An inquiry into the manner in which police of the Wabash Avenue district are conducting their investigation into the mysterious death of the Rev. Maurice J. Hyde, 46, assistant pastor of St. Jariath's Catholic church, 1725 Jackson blvd., was ordered yesterday by Commissioner Allman. The commissioner assigned Edwin J. Daly, department inspector, to the investigation and turned over to him a second report made by Capt. Crane since the death of the clergyman, who was found unconscious and apparently robbed at 40th and State sts. early on Sept. 28.

An explanation of why the station's accident report listed the priest as a "clerk" with the notation he had been injured at work will be asked. His address was given as 10056 S. Damen av., the home of a sister, Mrs. Margaret Lane.

Father Hyde died last Friday in Mercy hospital of a skull fracture. He had not regained consciousness. Subsequent testimony at an inquest revealed that earlier in the evening he had visited a friend, Joseph M. Courtney, 3702 W. 60th st. Capt. Crane said his men learned the recorded identity of the victim from

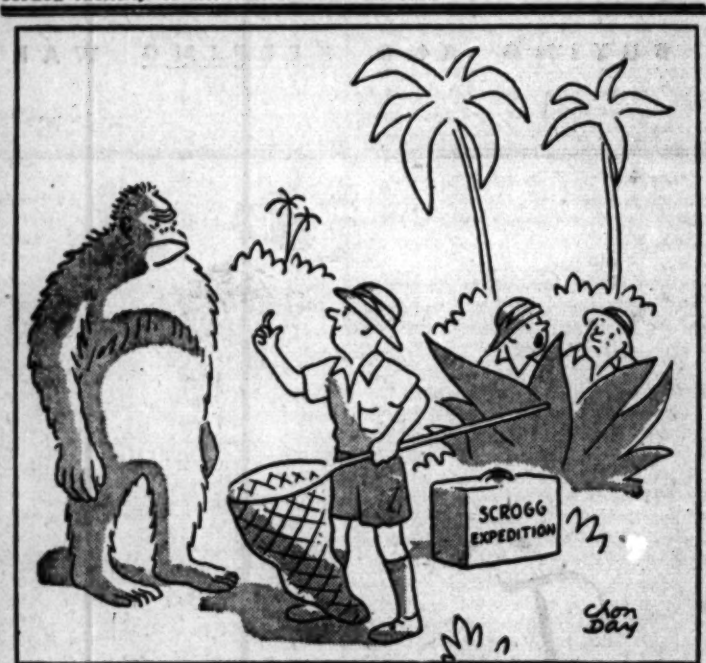

Tomatoes Nipped

The first frost of the season was reported by the Chicago office of the weather bureau yesterday morning, even tho the coldest official temperature was 35 degrees, the reading at the Chicago airport at 6 a. m.

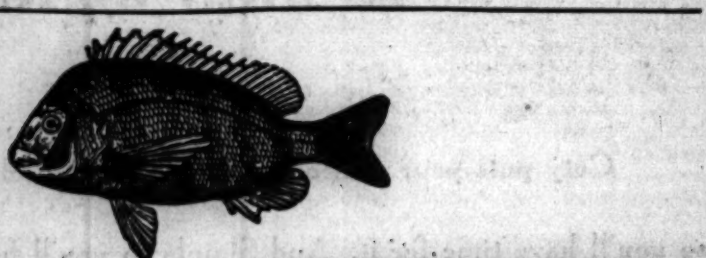

James Smith, acting head of the Chicago office of the weather bureau, explained that the official temperature is taken on thermometers in an instrument shelter five feet above the ground at the airport. The ground temperatures went as low as 25 degrees in low areas in the city and suburbs.

Charles Glover, of the Blue Island office of the Cook County Farm bureau, said the temperature was low enough to stop the growth of tender vegetables, particularly tomatoes and peppers, in the southern part of the county. The light frost did not damage root crops or members of the cabbage family. Most truck farmers and home gardeners had harvested their tender vegetables, Glover reported.

hospital attacks and it was not until later in the day that his true identity became known. A clerical collar which he wore had been removed by firemen of an inhalator squad and was not seen by his men, he said.

ACCUSE BADGER ATTY. GENERAL AS DRUNK DRIVER

Madison, Wis., Oct. 12 (Special).—A warrant will be issued tomorrow, Madison police officials said today, charging Atty. Gen. John E. Martin, 52, of 3422 Circle Close, Shorewood (Madison suburb) with driving while under the influence of intoxicating liquor. Martin was arrested and booked on the charge Wednesday, but could not be arraigned in court today because of the Columbus day holiday.

Martin, a police report showed, was the driver of a car which side-wiped another automobile on West Main st., driven by Lt. G. F. Choles, 22, of Madison. The attorney general was released on $100 bail pending a court appearance Friday. He is the Republican party's candidate for reelection as attorney general in the Nov. 7 election.

2 New Chicago Polit Cases Bring Year's Total to 141

Two new cases of polyonitellus were reported to the health department yesterday, bringing the total for the year to 141 cases. Of the total number of cases reported this year, six resulted in death, compared with a total of 888 cases and 81 deaths in the same period last year.

SHERIFFS' UNIT OPENS CAMPAIGN FOR RE-ELECTION

Victor L. Schaefer, Cook county treasurer, and Elmer J. Hoffman, former DuPage county sheriff, yesterday announced the opening of a nonpartisan drive by sheriffs and treasurers for a constitutional amendment permitting the reelection of county treasurers and sheriffs.

Schaefer is directing the drive in Cook county and Hoffman has charge of the campaign downstate. Approval is sought for the amendment proposition that will be voted upon at the Nov. 7 election. Schaefer said the proposal will appear in the upper left corner of the regular ballot and that it must have a majority of all votes cast. Failure to vote for the amendment is a vote against it.

Hoffman announced the Illinois Federation of Labor adopted a resolution at its recent convention in favor of the amendment and urged all laboring men to vote for it.

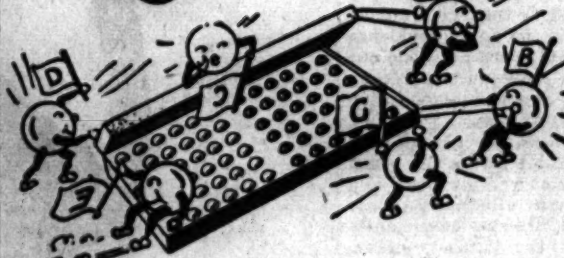

BACK DOOR BURGLARS GET EUGH.
While Alex Maryanski of 8645 Phillips av. was accepting a new telephone book at his front door last night, burglars entered the rear door, which was unlocked, and snatched four imported Chinese rugs valued at $500 from his living room floor, he reported to police.

PAPER CONTROL USED IN EFFORT TO CHAIN PRESS

Flagrant Quota Violation Goes Unpunished.

[This is another chapter of the new book, "Liberty and the Press," which records The Chicago Tribune's struggle to preserve a free press for the American people. Yesterday's installment traced the beginning of a recent concerted campaign against The Tribune and allied newspapers that have opposed New Deal policies.]

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

[Copyright: 1944, by The Chicago Tribune.] In consideration of the various attempts to strike down or undermine the freedom of the press principle in this country, one is always brought back to the first and most persistent enemy of this principle—government. Its way of working may be direct or indirect. Both methods have been shown in this history.

Newsprint paper became a war casualty on Jan. 1, 1943, when limitation order L-240 was set up by the war production board to control the consumption of this commodity by the newspapers of this country. It was like rationing sugar in restaurants. Quotas were set by the tonnage used in printing the net paid circulation of the newspapers in 1941, plus 3 per cent for wastage. A year later a sliding scale of deductions was put into effect under which the larger newspapers were required to curtail their consumption approximately 24 per cent under their 1941 net paid tonnage.

Holcombe Controls Majority. This became the law and its violation called for punishment by fine or imprisonment or both. An appeals board was established which became the court for the newspaper industry in this necessity. Certain exemptions were provided for when excessive hardships had been shown. All the print paper went into a common pool, and when a new allotment was given to any one paper on appeal it had to be taken away from others.

The appeals board, which had the fate of newspapers in its hands, was made up of five members, with Dr. A. N. Holcombe as chairman. The record indicates that he soon came into control of the majority vote of the board and thus became a powerful voice in handing out the ex-quota tonnage of newspapers.

Dr. Holcombe is a former professor of government at Harvard university, listed as a Republican and member of the American Academy

Ready to Retire

MISS PEARL I. FIELD.

What does a librarian plan to do when she retires after 38 years of handling books? She plans to read. So says Miss Pearl I. Field who will retire today from the Chicago Public Library at the age of 59. Reading is something she simply fell behind on thru the years, she said yesterday. She would like to catch up on her fishing, too.

Miss Field was presented yesterday with a diamond wristwatch and a hand lettered testimonial from the library board of directors and she was honored by the West Side Historical society for creating interest in the area while she was librarian at Legler branch.

Miss Field is creator of the Book Mobile, a library on wheels which visits factories and plants, lending books for employees to read. In its experimental stage it has proved highly successful, library officials said.

of Arts and Sciences and other societies of the learned, and is the author of "The New Party Politics" in 1933 and "Government in a Planned Democracy" in 1935.

Higher Ups Dictate Rule. E. M. Antrim, business manager of THE TRIBUNE, who has been before the appeals board many times, has this to say:

"The records of the appeals board and the division of printing and publishing clearly show that Dr. Holcombe's decisions follow no clearly defined policy, are absolutely inconsistent one with another, and are made purely as a result of political or New Deal expediency.

"There is every indication in certain cases where strong political pressure has been brought to bear that the decision has been dictated from higher up and that Dr. Holcombe and his stooges have been peremptorily ordered to grant tonnage and then fish around for some excuse to support the grant.

"The only consistent policy the board can be said to have followed is a policy which takes away from the strong to give to the weak; which grants tonnage out of a common pool to fourth, fifth, and sixth place newspapers to enable them to become second or even first place newspapers so far as circulation and advertising linage are concerned. In many cases the favored newspaper is an ardent supporter of the New Deal and the competitor who is being discriminated against is a critic of the New Deal."

There are many cases of favoritism, particularly that of the Chicago Sun. Mr. Antrim has come to the conclusion that in meeting the competition of the Sun in Chicago he has to fight the United States government.

A similar situation exists in Chicago, according to Mr. Antrim's interpretation of the record, in the favoritism shown the Chicago Times, which has supported the New Deal, against the Chicago Herald-American, which has opposed it. As to the Sun case Mr. Antrim said:

"The Chicago Sun began publication on Dec. 4, 1941. It, therefore, had only 28 days in the base quota year of 1941. Not having a base period, it was necessary under the order for the Chicago Sun to be given an ex-quota grant of tonnage by the printing and publishing division and the appeals board.

"For the first two quarters of 1943, when the order took effect, the Sun was given quotas established by some rule-of-thumb method. Protests against such methods and the amounts granted were filed with the printing and publishing division by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE but were totally ignored."

Dispute over the Sun's quota continued, until in 1944 it was found that this New Deal newspaper had exceeded its allotment in the amount of 884 tons of paper.

One of Most Flagrant.

"This over-use of the Sun is one of the most flagrant cases of willful violation of the law which has yet come to the attention of the compliance division of the war production board," commented Mr. Antrim.

"The compliance division sent three experts to Chicago to check up on the Sun's consumption the latter part of July last. They did not check their base tonnage figures, only their consumption. Then they came over to THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE and worked from July 31 to Aug. 3 in a desperate tho unsuccessful effort to find something wrong with our figures. The investigators returned to Washington, but there was a long delay in reaching a decision as to what could be done. In other words, the Sun had been caught in violation of its quota, had appealed to the powers that be to help them out, and everything was being done to accomplish this purpose."

The result was that the Sun's tonnage basis was changed and its over-use of 884 tons of paper given a new excuse. The new quota given the Sun made no deduction for the excess of its old quota.

Sun Whitewash in Prospect. "The matter of the Sun's violation is still in the hands of the compliance division and complete secrecy surrounds its deliberations. If it follows the pattern set by the appeals board a coat of whitewash will be applied to the Sun's unlawful act. There is ample evidence that the appeals board has gone out of its way to make such a recommendation to the compliance division," said Mr. Antrim.

The Chicago Times has been a constant appellant before the board for grants of newsprint over and above its regular allotment. These appeals have been consistently granted upon the flimsiest of excuses.

"In spite of the grants that have been made to it," said Mr. Antrim, "it has exceeded its consumption quota in violation of the law as laid down in the order issued under delegated authority from congress. Nothing has ever been done by the compliance division to enforce the penalty of the law for such violations."

Mrs. Pellegrini said she and her husband were married on July 26, 1943, only six weeks after they first

OPA FILES SUIT TO DENY DRIVER SUPPLY OF GAS

Charges Buying of Black Market Fuel.

The office of price administration yesterday filed suit for injunction in Federal District court against a couple, both employed in war plants, to restrain them from acquiring or using any gasoline in their automobile after a local board had determined they had bought black market fuel and made a trip to Colorado.

Arthur G. Mellin.

The suit was filed by Lewis M. Nowlan, chief of the area OPA enforcement section, against Arthur G. Mellin and his wife, Marie, of 7808 S. Laflin st. Mellin is an employee of Bird & Son, 1442 W. 76th st., engaged in war work. His wife works in the Dodge Chicago plant. The complaint was assigned to Judge Walter J. La Bay, Nowlan said he would ask for a temporary injunction in a day or two.

First in Chicago Area. The action was the first of its kind taken against motorists in Chicago, and, according to Nowlan, the severest yet filed against an individual driver. A suspension of all gasoline rations and the use of any gasoline for six months was asked.

According to Nowlan, Mellin and his wife were called before their local board, No. 40-18 at 7858 S. Ashland av., on Aug. 21 and given A and B gasoline rations revoked until Feb. 1, 1945, after they had admitted they acquired coupons from sources other than the OPA.

They violated the board order by using their car continuously until Sept. 19, the suit said, and have used it since then. Called before the board again, Nowlan said, Mellin declared he would use as much gasoline as he wanted, and called board members "boy scouts."

The suit asks the court to enforce the board order, and to enjoin the Mellins from putting any gasoline into their automobile and from violating any other ration regulations during the suspension period set by the board.

Mellin Tells His Story. Mellin said his wife's health has been impaired and she has been under a physician's care since she was struck on the head by a piece of masonry which fell from a tombstone last May while they were at a family burial plot in Lafayette, Ind. They said they drove to Colorado in June because they were advised the trip would benefit her health.

The ration board, after summoning him, interrupted him constantly when he tried to explain, and mem-

Welcome for Hero

Lt. R. A. Neveu, who was lost in jungles of India, as he received a welcome home greeting from his fiancée, Miss Marion Hanson, last night at Illinois Central station.

Second Lt. Harry K. Neveu, 22, of Coleman, Wis., an army transport command pilot in India for the last 19 months, arrived in Chicago last night en route to Rochester, Minn., for reassignment. He was met by his fiancée, Miss Marion Hanson, 1220 Pratt blvd., who hugged him and said she had worried about him, but knew he never would let the Japs part them.

In August, 1943, Neveu said it appeared to him that the Japs were far away, and the only enemies he had to fear were the head hunters of the Nag hills in the Himalaya mountain country between Burma and India into which his plane fell on a flight to China. Neveu and two other crew members and 17 passengers bailed out safely; his co-pilot was killed.

Also their plight became known immediately. It was 12 days before a rescue party reached them. Meanwhile they subsisted on rations dropped from the air, supplemented by chickens and half a cow, for which the marooned party traded their undershirts to the head hunters.

bers told him facts about his wife's health were "irrelevant," Mellin asserted.

"I intend to keep on driving my car," Mellin said. "If the OPA can send officials to a factory to check on gasoline users, then they should find time to question those at race tracks, too."

Lumber Executive Falls 6 Floors; Likely to Live

Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 12 (AP). — Raymond T. Dempsey, 64, vice president of the Long-Bell Lumber company, probably will survive a six-story fall, his physician said tonight. Dempsey fell today from an eighth story window of a downtown office building onto a screen skylight guard on an adjoining two story building fracturing his left arm and left leg and suffering bruises, the physician said. The injured man's condition tonight was "very good."

SINATRA FANS, 30,000 STRONG, STORM THEATER

New York, Oct. 12 (Special).—An estimated 30,000 swooning, squealing, hysterical teen-aged admirers of Frank [The Voice] Sinatra today taxed the efforts of 200 New York policemen trying to quell the rioting bobby-soxers who stormed a Times Square theater for a glimpse or sound of their crooning idol.

By the time the 3,600 ticket purchasers—that's all the theater holds—had been admitted, two unidentified girls had been hospitalized by injuries suffered in the crush of youthful strugglers, many others had fainted or pretended to faint, shirts and buttons had been ripped from policemen's uniforms and the theater's box office windows had been shattered.

Sinatra Is Fearful. Inside the theater, even Sinatra, in his second day of his first local appearance since his movie triumphs in Hollywood, was visibly affected by the riotous youngsters. He asserted "the crowd is swell but I'm always afraid of somebody getting hurt."

He tried to quiet them from the stage as they ran shrieking up and down the aisles and he threatened to "forget the show and go out and get some breakfast" unless they behaved.

They sat in perfect stillness as he sang his first song—it was about love—and then broke into another roar.

Altho the theater was not scheduled to open until 8:25 a. m., the devotees of swoon started to gather near the box office at midnight.

Cry, "Give us Frankie." "Frankie! Give us Frankie!" screamed the youngsters, many of whom had bananas and milk bottles bulging from their clothing.

Long after the theater was packed for the first performance, the crowd continued to grow. At 11 a. m., Acting Assistant Chief Police Inspector John W. Conway estimated the crowd at 25,000 outside the theater.

GUY IN UNIFORM GETS TRIMMING AND LOSES WAY

(Picture on back page.) It was a highly irregular proceeding, but Fred Palumbo went thru with it. Palumbo is a barber at 1539 Hyde Park blvd., and when the fellow in military uniform demanded a haircut he gave him one, even tho the fellow announced he had no money.

But when the trimming was finished and the fellow walked to the door, then stuck his finger in his mouth and said he didn't remember where he lived, Palumbo called the Hyde Park police.

Sgt. Frank Vale looked over his list of persons reported missing and soon established that his charge was William Vreski Jr., 5125 University pl. Mrs. Vreski said she'd be right down after Billy and that she'd pay Mr. Palumbo. Billy is 3.

Day by Day on the Farm

Oct. 12, 1944. 10 acre rye field on the Fox river farm is the site of content for 71 head of Aberdeen-Angus steers and 48 Hampshire hogs. The field was planted to corn last spring, and after the corn was cut for silage the plot was seeded to rye. Now the field is covered with the succulent green growth which the steers and hogs consider pasturage supreme.

The 71 steers include the 35 two-year olds recently bought on the St. Paul market and 36 yearlings from the farm's herd. They will be fed as a unit, but the older steers will be sent to market first. It is possible that the 2 year olds will be fed for 120 to 150 days, making them ready for market in mid-winter.

Two Meals a Day. The steers' current diet includes alfalfa, timothy, pasturage, and ground corn in addition to the new rye. A small section at the east end of the rye field contains the hay crops, to which the steers and hogs have access. The men already have mounted the mechanical corn picker on a tractor and are harvesting some ear corn.

They pick only enough, for each day's feeding, sending the ears thru a hammer mill and then directly into the feed bunks in the field. The steers are getting two corn meals a day, about 400 pounds to the feeding.

Pigs Behave Well. The rye field is separated from an adjacent cornfield by a barbed wire fence which holds the steers but permits entry to the pigs. Thirty-five of the porkers were farrowed this spring, and the other 13 are about a year old, and so far none has learned the trick of knocking down the cornstalks to get the ears.

If a few experienced sows were introduced into this group of pigs it wouldn't be long until they would show the youngsters how to handle a cornfield, but so far the pigs are on their good behavior, and are nibbling only on the ears which have fallen to the ground.

Ten bred heifers from the Fox River farm's registered herd of Aberdeen-Angus are being offered for sale. All have been bred to Blackspere 129. Inquiries about these heifers may be sent to Clarence Thurow, Yorkville, Ill.

Women in War Work

By Dorothy Johnson

Do you want to be a war worker in the Hawaiian Islands?

Maj. W. M. Potter of the army signal corps has announced that there are 16—and only 16—openings for women between 21 and 35 to work as civilian clerks—typists under civil service with the corps in Hawaii. Single women are preferred who have had at least four years of high school and can type at the rate of 60 words a minute. The jobs pay $2,300 a year.

Applicants presenting the best qualifications will be accepted for immediate employment. A certificate of availability from a present employer is necessary if the applicant now is a war essential worker.

Maj. Potter's office, room 1121, 1 N. La Salle st., is registration headquarters.

The WASPs, women air force service pilots, will be inactivated Dec. 20, unless there are unexpected or higher combat losses in the air war over Germany. Gen. H. H. Arnold, commanding general, announced yesterday in Washington, D. C. The decision to release volunteer women pilots from further service with the army air force is based on indications that, by mid-December, there will be sufficient men pilots available to fill all flying assignments in the United States and overseas.

"I am proud of the WASPs and their record of skill, versatility, and loyalty," Gen. Arnold said in announcing the decision. "They have done outstanding work for the A. F. even exceeding our expectations when the program was instituted in 1942."

"There are approximately 1,000 WASPs now flying all types of aircraft, including the fastest fighters and B-29s in diversified classes of work, including ferrying, target towing, simulated bombing runs, stranding missions day and night, test flying, and flight training."

Until Dec. 20, WASP activities will be continued without change. Jacqueline Cochran, director of women pilots, said. As a substitute for the honorable discharge to which each WASP would have been entitled had she been put on military status, she will receive a certificate of service. Such certificates also will go to the next of kin of the 30 WASPs who have died in service.

The navy department in Washington announced yesterday that two representatives each of the WAVES, SPARS, and marine corps women's reserve will depart soon for duty in Hawaii as a vanguard to survey housing conditions in preparation for billeting of feminine personnel in the Hawaiian Islands.

Many Fellows Get Tangled in Own Lines

BY MAUREEN DALY.

(Copyright 1944, By The Chicago Tribune.)

It is not true that a good line is the shortest distance between two dates. But there are still a few well-meaning fellows who base their date work on that theory. These glib characters still think all girls, from first grade up, are pleased, flattered, and made more amiable by a little empty chatter about the curl in their hair, the charm in their faces, and the usual "the way you look tonight" conversation.

Some of these boys even go so far in this stupid cupid approach as to give girls in the same class and the same crowd exactly the same stars-in-the-eyes "where have you been all my life" approach. That kind of over-used line might be effective on an occasional tame dame but the really smart gals are too smart for that! And especially when they can get together to compare notes!

A good time Charlie, the boy who brings out the same old line every time he latches his lashes on something lovely, can usually be spotted on the first date because his line is apt to be so well memorized and worn so thin that even the most glib girl can see right thru it. Girls, like every one else, like to feel appreciated but they also like to feel that the compliment is sincere.

In any gal's mind it adds up to the same thing. A boy who tries to impress a date with a second-hand line is strictly an off-the-cob character. He is either not too bright himself for he wouldn't use the same approach over and over again, or he thinks that most girls are not too bright for he wouldn't expect them to believe the same old story over and over again.

It's pleasant to be able to slide out of a snug, cozy bed and into a warm, comfortable bathrobe on chilly mornings. Newest of the new warm bathrobes are those of luscious colored corduroy, washable and well styled.

The smart looking brunch coat at right is of wide wale corduroy, available in Kelly or bright red. Collarless and fastened with three metallic buttons, the coat, with its length and boxy effect, may be worn on the street for day time or evening. Around the house it provides handsome contrast to black or navy slacks.

An eye catching robe is the pink wale corduroy of red, white, and blue stripes. In center. It is simply cut and has notch lapels, turn-back cuffs, single pocket, and detachable belt. Other stripe color combinations are wine and oyster, Kelly and brown, and beige and brown.

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MAC KAY

Collegiate White Collar Girl. Average age at graduation: 23 years. Average age on the job: 31 years.

Job: Research associate or secretary. Average beginning salary eight years ago: $90 a month. Average salary today: $175 a month.

A composite of the 557 women who have been graduated from the school of business of the University of Chicago, this typical white collar girl, according to Ann Brewington, assistant professor of business education, began as a secretary before Pearl Harbor, since Pearl Harbor her first position is of research nature.

The typical white collar girl received her degree at 23 years 7 months, one held a bachelor's degree at 18 and her master's at 20. Only one, Ursula E. Stone, has received a doctor's degree, also 20 per cent of the graduates have master's degrees.

The collegiate white collar girl has held two jobs in five years, lives at home, spends 5 per cent of her annual salary on vacation, has faced only two and one-half weeks of unemployment.

"If you arrive at the butcher's carefully bearing the necessary ration stamps to bring home a steak and find no steak . . . or you decide on fish for dinner and the butcher proudly displays a beautiful steak. That's just one of the minor irritations, one of the little thorns of war. The rabbit got into your garden . . . your last recapped tire blows out . . . you can't get rubber bands . . . the family doctor has been drafted and no one else understands your delicate stomach."

"If you add all the little thorns together you'll build a mountain of dissatisfaction; better to brush off each small disappointment as it comes along and keep remembering that on the islands of the Pacific, in France, and Italy our men are suffering the real hardships of war."

There are said to be eight words in the English language ending in "dous": Stupendous, tremendous, horrendous—and what others?

Authority May Irk Child of In-between Age

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON EVANS.

(Copyright 1944, By News Syndicate Co., Inc.)

"We had had our afternoon tea and, all being mothers, our talk naturally drifted to that ever-interesting subject, children," said a friend.

"I noticed that the most discussed problem was how to get the children to obey with the least possible friction. Most of the mothers advocated corporal punishment as the quickest way to handle a situation, but a few had other ideas on the subject: Explanations, constant repetition of demands, making a child do something three or four times in order to impress it on his mind, etc."

The small child senses that, even with your willingness to give reasons, "mother knows best," your tactfulness and cheerfulness will win the day, and if you're any good at understanding the needs and workings of your small boy or girl you don't have any real opposition. But that is not a little later.

As the years elapse, you have a lively, playful, heedless "in-between" on your hands—an 8, 10, or 12 year old child. At this age authority irks a little, but not in a very adult way. It's mostly objected to because the poor mother has to exercise it in connection with such unimportant matters as manners, quiet, mud on the rugs, chores, wearing enough clothes outdoors, and the hand and face washing.

Authority at this age is resented mostly because it takes time and thought from important things, like the crowd, the gang, play, reading, radio, or being outdoors. It isn't usually resented because a boy or girl of this age wants to be determinedly disobedient most of the time.

That is why corporal punishment is unwise and negative in its effect as a means of obtaining the results desired. It may be a quick way of enforcing your will, but it isn't a very intelligent way to gain your child's cooperation.

Avoid a lot of bickering and argument over routine things, but never put the lid of unquestioning obedience on anything that is of serious concern to your child.

Youth Hall of Fame Suggested in Plans to Fight Delinquency

A hall of fame in which young men and women would receive recognition for their works in the arts and sciences was suggested last night at a meeting of the Chicago Youth conference and the conference's adult advisers in the Morrison hotel. The idea, which has membership of 175,000 among Chicago and Cook county high school pupils, is planning a campaign to combat juvenile delinquency.

A youth hall of fame was suggested by Municipal Judge J. M. Braude after Dr. Philip L. Seaman, chairman of the Chicago recreational commission, asserted delinquency would be discouraged if young men and women were properly praised for creditable works.

Chaplain Westberg has developed a program which places patient visitation first, but on a selective basis in cooperation with nurses and physicians. Instead of nurses' Bible classes, a nurses' credit course in religious aspects in the care of patients is held daily, with Chaplain Dicks' bonus lecture text. The institution's teaching functions will be extended to theological student interns and to intensive courses for active pastors. Another point will be the development of a chapel at Augustana, around which the religious leadership of the institution will center. Chaplain Westberg will be formally installed Oct. 29 as chaplain of Augustana hospital.

New Chaplain Plan Tried in Hospitals Here

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

An innovation in chaplain's service to patients and staffs of church-related Protestant hospitals has been introduced in Chicago institutions, first at Wesley Memorial hospital and later at Augustana hospital. Previously, the conventional chaplain usually had been a superannuated clergyman who made his daily calls on all patients.

While patients generally were cheered and spiritually aided by these pastors of long experience, the church related hospital gradually has been losing its religious functions and unmatched opportunities for the application of spiritual factors in the healing arts.

Yesterday the Rev. Granger E. Westberg, recently appointed chaplain of Augustana hospital, gave credit to Wesley hospital and its new chaplain, the Rev. Russell L. Dicks, for introducing new functions and techniques into the work of the chaplain, as well as for reversing the trend of hospitals to third failure as religious teaching centers.

Chaplain Dicks, like Chaplain Westberg, is a young man who prepared himself specially for his work. He is the co-author, with a celebrated physician, Dr. Richard C. Cabot, of the book, "The Art of Ministering to the Sick," which the Augustana chaplain described as the best book in his field.

Graduated from Augustana Theological seminary, Rock Island, only five years ago, the new Augustana chaplain became interested in the religious teaching functions of hospitals, as well as ministering to the sick, while serving as a Bloomington pastor. Before his appointment he took hospital internships at Massachusetts General hospital, Elgin State hospital, and finally with Chaplain Dicks.

Robsjohn-Giddings, author of "Goodbye, Mr. Chippendale."

Guests wishing to remain at the club for luncheon may make reservations with Miss Elizabeth Burton, 23 Bellevue pl., not later than the Saturday morning preceding each lecture. Mrs. Byron S. Harvey is among those who will entertain at luncheon after the first lecture.

Later in the season Miss Winslow, who is a freshman at Northwestern university, will have a tea.

First of the debutantes to choose a Christmas eve party is Mrs. Frances Howell, who will be presented at society at a tea Dec. 24 in the Woodlawn av. home of her parents, the Walter R. Howells. Miss Howell, who graduated from the Girls' Latin school, attends Pine Manor.

Thru the Looking Glass

Tomorrow is the last shopping day for gifts for overseas Christmas boxes which, in case you've forgotten, must be in the mail by Oct. 16. If you're one of the last minute

Annie who will be tearing around shopping for things to send, we'll come to your rescue with a few suggestions.

Razor blades are a welcome gift and we've discovered a box of ten excellent blades all done up in an attractive package ready to slip into your larger gift box. The blades are hollow ground and leather stropped, which, while it means little or nothing to most women, signifies a good blade to men. These are double edged blades and of highest quality to give fullest service.

Dressings for the hair, brilliancines and pomades, and such unglamorous articles as toothbrushes and some of his favorite tooth paste or powder are other gifts the service man likes to get. They sound like minor items, but in the life he leads are important and in some areas hard to come upon. That is the secret of the right things to send—the little comforts of everyday life that we take for granted and men at war are apt to miss.

Finally remember that a lip pomade is a real boon to the service man no matter which theater he is serving in. Colorless, compact, and taking little or no room in his pocket, it offers a world of comfort and freedom from irritation due to exposure to the elements. The pomades help heal and soothe parched and dry or rough and cracked lips and act as a protective shield.

Orchestra's 1st Concert Proves Disappointing

Concert by the Chicago Symphony orchestra, Désiré Defauw conductor. Presented at Orchestra hall Thursday evening, Oct. 12, 1944, and scheduled for repetition Friday afternoon. The program:
Overture to "The Magic Flute," Mozart
Symphony No. 7, C major, Schubert
Tone Poem, "The Swan," Debussy
"Zarathustra," Strauss

BY CLAUDIA CASSIDY.

The Chicago Symphony orchestra under the direction of Désiré Defauw opened its 54th season at Orchestra hall last night, and it would give me the deepest pleasure to tell you it was a magnificent occasion—and mean it. I can think of nothing more reassuring than to report a superb opening concert that would mean our beloved orchestra is in good hands and that we who find it indispensable can look forward to a brilliant season. But what I heard was a saddening performance that went from the commonplace to the dull to the unthinkable.

Except for a basic tone which often sounds thin and acid where once it had such luxuriant splendor, the orchestra did some remarkably fine playing, especially notable at the start of the season with 10 or more new members. The strings were alert, the winds got some lovely lovely effects and the solo trumpet had a clarion ring. But the old undertow of excitement is gone, the flawless placing of detail, the wonderful rhythmic sense of molten fusion that can make your spine prickles, the sound sense of structure without which all is confusion.

A good conductor can improve a poor orchestra, but a poor conductor can ruin a good orchestra. He is the boss, the kingpin, the man who makes the decisions and sets the pace. He can with one small stick or two waving hands defeat the orchestra, the audience, and what is worse, the composer. Time and again last night the orchestra launched into something of its old brilliance. Time and again Mr. Defauw threw it out of focus, muddled the texture, and rattled the tone.

Mozart's overture to "The Magic Flute" got off to a dull start, then recovered to adequate performance. Schubert's great C major symphony was a mass of detail, often soapy, which seldom achieved the shining brilliance of one of the most beautiful works in the repertoire. But these were masterpieces compared with "Zarathustra." This Strauss tone poem has been a Chicago Symphony orchestra masterpiece. Our orchestra gave it its first American performance nearly half a century ago. It was one of the late Frederick Stock's unforgettable triumphs. "Zarathustra" simply isn't every conductor's dish, as it demands the most dexterous handling of tone, the sharp accent of line and color, the irresistible sense of impact if it is to succeed. Shorn of success, it sulks. It is either masterful or maudlin. Last night's performance was an error little short of disaster.

Betrothal Told

Miss Jean Caldwell.

Miss Jean Caldwell's engagement to Ensign Robert Richardson Buell of the maritime service, son of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Buell of Ogden Dunes, Ind., formerly of Flossmoor, was announced at a small party last night in the Flossmoor home of Miss Caldwell's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. Bruce Caldwell. The wedding will take place in New Orleans, La., on Nov. 4. Ensign Buell is stationed there in a school of advanced training for maritime officers. Miss Caldwell attended the Dana Hall school and Connecticut College for Women and was graduated from the University of Michigan, of which Ensign Buell also is a graduate.

Subdued Dress Noted Among Concertgoers

BY HARRIETT PRIBBLE.

"Definitely a war time opening," was the consensus of those in the audience at last night's concert of the Chicago Symphony orchestra in Orchestra hall—meaning that the listeners dressed in subdued fashion. Typical of the costumes of those who chose to dress were Mrs. Thomas I. Underwood's mustard crepe gown and Mrs. Robert Hall McCormick's black dinner dress with a taffeta blouse squared off in fuchsia and steel blue, over which she wore a "platinum fox jacket." The Walter S. Brewsters, on the other hand, arrived in simple street attire and hurried to their seats with a soldier and sailor they had picked up in the lobby to share their box.

Edward L. Ryerson, president of the Orchestra association, and Mrs. Ryerson had among their guests the Arthur G. Cables, Norman Chester, president of the Milwaukee Orchestra association; Mrs. Désiré Defauw, and Arthur Rubinstein, pianist, who will appear with the orchestra later in the season. Capt. and Mrs. Benyaurd B. Wygant, Mrs. Sartelle Brooks, and Mr. and Mrs. Clark J. Lawrence shared Mrs. Emmons Blaine's box, although Mrs. Blaine was absent.

The Walter P. Paepkes were hosts to the James Humes and the Alfred P. Shaws. Mrs. Shaw in a striking reefer of sapphire blue color.

'The Key'..... By Patricia Wentworth

(Copyright 1944, By Patricia Wentworth, Inc.)

INSTALLMENT XXIII. GHOST APPEARED.

Miss Brown said, "O!" It was really more of a gasp than a word.

"They can't!"

Garth said, "They have."

She turned on him with a surprising energy.

"They can't prove it—they can't prove anything! I didn't tell them anything—only that I went into the Cut! They'll never make me tell them anything more than that! He wasn't there—I tell you he wasn't there!"

Garth said, "He was seen."

"Who saw him? Whoever it was is lying! I tell you he wasn't there! It was a man I didn't know! I dropped my key! It wasn't even! They can't make me say it was!"

Janice looked frightened and sorry. She said in a little voice:

"It isn't any good—he told them he was there."

"O, no!"

Janice went on.

"He told them he took your key. It's no good saying he didn't. I know he didn't shoot Mr. Harsch, but they think he did. Because he had the key." Miss Brown walked round the table, feeling her way by the edge of it as if she were blind.

"How do you know he didn't do it?"

"It is all very extraordinary," said Miss Sophy.

She sat on the drawing room sofa with Garth on one side of her and Janice on the other.

"Poor, dear Medora! And she won't tell me anything—not anything at all. She doesn't even cry. I said to her, 'Medora, if you can't tell me what it is all about, do have a comfortable cry! But she just lay there and looked at me. So I said, 'Well, Medora, I can't force your confidence, and I won't try, but if you don't take your tea, I can send for Dr. Edwards, and I will.' And I came away."

"I expect she took it," said Janice.

"And where does that get us?" Miss Sophy said. "We were so comfortable, and everything was so pleasant—except of course for the war. Poor Mr. Harsch—such a fine musician—and Mr. Everton and the Madocs—such a musical circle." She turned to Garth. "Miss Madoc is quite a good accompanist, and when Mr. Madoc isn't in a temper he has a very agreeable tenor voice. But I should never have dreamed that there was anything between him and Medora. I always thought they didn't even like each other."

"I expect that was the trouble, Aunt Sophy—they didn't like each other, but they fell in love. It's the sort of thing that's likely to make trouble, isn't it?"

"I don't know, my dear boy. When I was a girl there was no one for me to fall in love with, so I never did. Poor Medora! And Mr. Madoc in prison! You know, my dear, I just can't believe he did anything so dreadful. And the dreadful part is that there isn't anything one can do."

Inside Janice's mind something said, "Miss Silver." She began to tell Miss Sophy what Ida Mottram had said, but before she had got very far she was interrupted.

"Miss Madoc Silver? My dear, how extraordinary!"

"O, Miss Sophy—why? Do you know about her?"

Miss Sophy nodded. "I know all about Miss Silver."

"Aunt Sophy!"

Garth and Janice gazed at her.

"Sophy Ferrara is a distant cousin of mine—thru dear Mama, of course. An aunt of hers, Sophronise Ferrara, married my grandfather's brother. I am called after her, and so was she. And of course I don't suppose you have ever heard of Sophy Ferrara, but her young cousin Laura Fane, a very charming girl, was placed in a most terrible position about 18 months ago. It didn't all get into the papers, but some of it did. Another cousin, Tanis Lyle, was murdered—"

Garth made a sudden exclamation.

"The Prior's Holt murder!"

"Yes, my dear. And Laura was very nearly murdered, too. Sophy Ferrara wrote and told me all about it. If Miss Silvers had not been staying in the house, almost anything might have happened. She was staying there just as an ordinary visitor."

Her voice died suddenly away. "Why shouldn't she come here and stay with me?"

Sunday intervened. Garth accompanied Miss Sophy to church and listened to the new rector's austere, academic voice with a curious feeling of unreality. Miss Sophy turned and whispered into his ear, "So different from poor Papa."

When they stood up for the psalms he detected Cyril Bond, singing a piercing quartet of a tone sharp against the native choir, who were even flatter than he remembered them. Glimpsing across the church, his eye lighted upon Mrs. Mottram in a fliberty-gibbet hat which matched the very bright blue of her dress. On one side of her a little girl of 5 with a tuss of yellow hair and a frilled pink frock. On the other Mr. Everton, who looked as if the choir was hurting him quite a lot. The eye roamed farther, and discovered that Janice wasn't there.

Janice was, and had been for what seemed like a very long time, sitting on the sofa beside Miss Madoc, who passed continuously from self-reproach, through protestations of her brother's big-mindedness and perfect innocence, to the despairing conclusion that everything was against him, and that he certainly would be hanged.

"If only I hadn't said anything to them about the key—"

"But, dear Miss Madoc, he told them about it himself. What you said didn't make the least bit of difference—it didn't, truly."

Two large tears ran down Miss Madoc's face.

"That's what you say, my dear, and I'm sure it's very kind of you, and I don't like to feel that I'm keeping you back from church, but really, when I think that that poor Mr. Harsch was with us and the blackberry tart was so particularly good! Poor Mr. Harsch enjoyed it so much, and had a second helping. O, my dear—do you believe in premonitions?"

"I don't know," said Janice.

"Nor do I," said Miss Madoc with a gulp. "But do you think perhaps Mr. Harsch had one? He said such a curious thing to me on Monday night. He'd been over to Marbury, you remember, to get something he wanted for that last experiment, and he came in late because he missed the bus and had to walk from the Halt. And I thought he looked bad when he came in, so I said to him, 'Are you very tired, Mr. Harsch?' and he said, 'I don't know—I think I must be. I have just seen a ghost!'"

Janice said, "What?"

Miss Madoc nodded.

"That is what he said, my dear. And I said, 'O, Mr. Harsch!'"

And he smiled and said, 'Did I frighten you? I wouldn't like to do that. It is nothing for you to be afraid of.' Do you think that he really saw something?"

"I don't know—"

Born Calcium-Poor!

MOTHERS, did you know that babies are born calcium-poor? Their bones are soft and need calcium to strengthen them.

SCIENTISTS recognize that, to be on the safe side in developing sturdy, well-shaped bones (and sound teeth), growing children should get EXTRA calcium every day...considerably more than just the daily governmental minimum requirement.

NOW many popular foods are completely lacking in calcium. Others supply very small amounts. MILK is our best food source of calcium, but many children refuse to drink enough milk.

SO IF YOU have a young "milk rebel" in your family, try this! Give her Cocomalt with her meals every day. Cocomalt is so rich in calcium it makes 3 glasses of milk equal a whole quart in calcium value...gives her that important "extra". (Also extra iron, phosphorus, and Vitamin B₁, and her day's need of Vitamin D!)

AND Cocomalt's delicious, chocolatey flavor turns milk into a treat she loves! Get Cocomalt today—serve it every day.

It's just good common sense KEEPING THE PROPER "IRON LEVEL" IN BLOOD VITAL TO EVERYONE!

You Get More Than One-third Your Daily Iron Needs in One Ounce of Famous Kellogg's All-Bran

IRON is vitally necessary in the making of the billions of new red blood cells your body creates daily. So vital is the need, that your body uses 70% of the iron you get from food, for blood alone. So if your diet is shy of this mineral, the "iron level" in your blood goes down, and vitality is threatened.

The best way to get iron is in food. But there are only a few foods that have an appreciable amount of iron.

However, there is a really rich, inexpensive source of ready, assimilable iron. It's KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN. Just one ounce of this nut-brown, crunchy cereal gives you over one-third your daily minimum needs of iron—gives you more iron for your money than almost any other food. KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN is extra rich in this mineral because it's made from the vital outer layers of finest wheat.

KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN IS MADE FROM THE VITAL OUTER LAYERS OF FINEST WHEAT

Probably you know that the skin of the potato or the peel of an apple is chock-full of essential food values. Well, into the vital outer layers of wheat, too, Nature has packed most of the grain's nutritive goodness.

KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN is made from these vital outer layers—that's why it's not only rich in iron, but is a storehouse of lots of other important food elements. In fact, in many of these, ALL-BRAN is more abundant than even whole wheat itself.

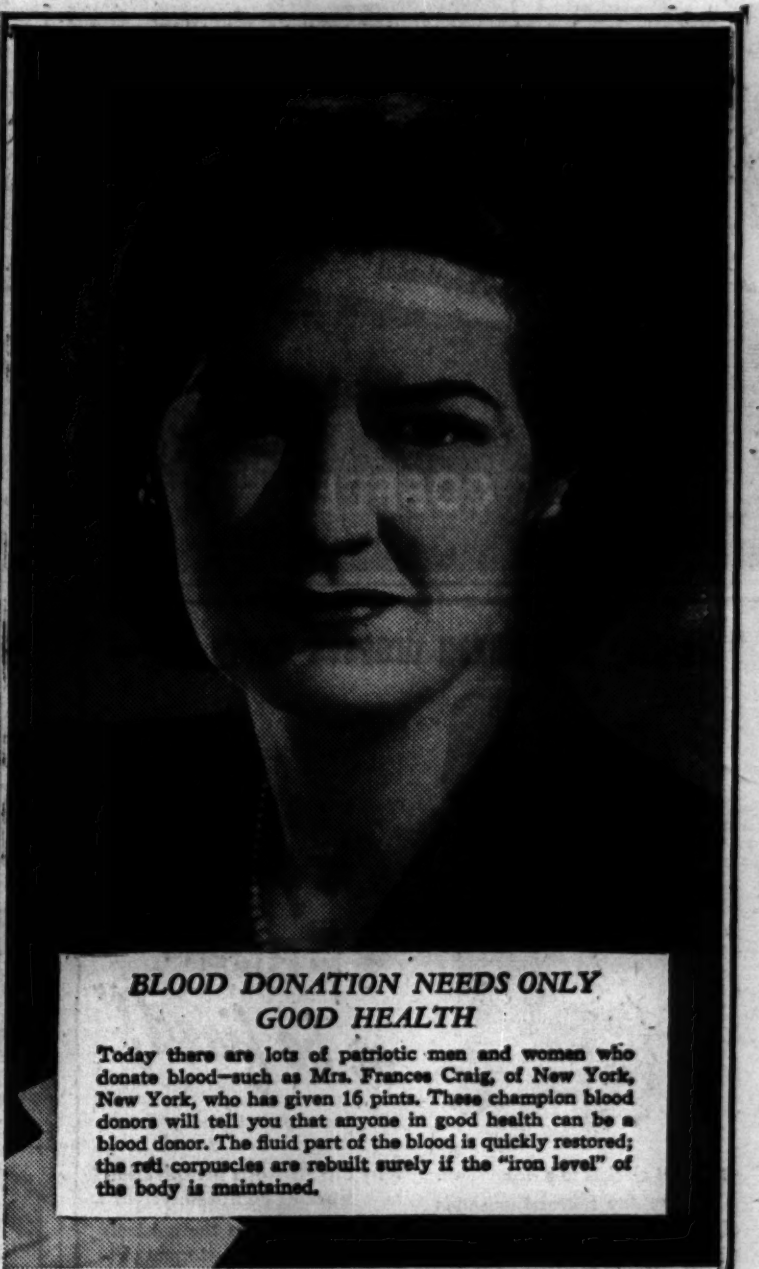

Triple Milled for Golden Softness

KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN is the ONLY whole bran cereal that's triple milled for golden softness. It's wonderful to eat with milk and fruit—a delicious way to get wholesome nourishment and extra iron. And it's America's most famous "regulating" cereal. So smooth and gentle-acting it's preferred by millions. Get the genuine ALL-BRAN, made only by Kellogg's in Battle Creek.

BLOOD DONATION NEEDS ONLY GOOD HEALTH

Today there are lots of patriotic men and women who donate blood—such as Mrs. Frances Craig, of New York, New York, who has given 16 pints. These champion blood donors will tell you that anyone in good health can be a blood donor. The fluid part of the blood is quickly restored; the red corpuscles are rebuilt surely if the "iron level" of the body is maintained.

Just Look What Hollywood Has Dished Up Now

"GYPSY WILDCAT."

BY ALBERT GOLDBERG.
Pinch me, kids! You should see what Hollywood has turned out as adult entertainment in this sixth year of war.

Remember all the swashbuckling romances by Sir Walter Scott, Rafael Sabatini, and the elder Dumas you've ever read, plus all the old Doug Fairbanks pictures—recall them, if you can, in a nightmare in which the characters of one are mixed with those of another and in which there is neither time nor place, and you'll have an approximation of "Gypsy Wildcat." It's in technicolor, as pretty as a bag of Christmas candy—and as indigestible.

The yarn is almost as complicated as "Il Trovatore." In fact, it finally gets around to borrowing a page from that ancient. A band of gypsies, of whom sultry Maria Montez is the tribal darling and Leo Carrillo the chief, is accused by a feudal baron of the murder of a count.

Jon Hall, a soldier of fortune with the figure of Errol Flynn and the smile of Clark Gable, knows the gypsies are innocent. Jon goes sweet on Maria at first sight, but when the old baron sees the pendant Maria wears he recognizes her as the long lost daughter of the dead count and heir to his lands and fortunes. Thereupon the baron marks Maria for his own, and the business begins—grape fiestas, torturings, wild horseback rides, high dive from the ramparts into the moat, a plunge down the mountainside, duels, dagger play, storming of the castle—it's all there.

If you really want to have fun at this show, try to guess what cen-

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Oct. 12.—Don Ameche has been signed by Jack Skirball for the Fred Allen picture, "It's in the Bag." Don and Rudy Vallee will be singing waiters in a night club. . . . Paramount finally has figured out its first specialty number for "Duffy's Tavern," with Sonny Tufts, Brian Donlevy, and Paulette Goddard. It starts off with Paulette in a bubble bath when Ed (Archie) Gardner walks in. Just how Sonny and Brian are to fit into the scene is still wrinkling writer's brows, but they figure they can't go wrong with an opening like that. . . . Fox has bought "Junior Miss," which Mrs. Temple wanted for Shirley. But since David Selznick and Mrs. T. aren't exactly chummy with Twentieth, that's going to be a little difficult to arrange. . . . Harold Newman, Detroit sports writer, is huddling with Harry Sherman to write a script from an idea of his, scene to be laid in New York, Mexico, and California. . . . Capt. Stuart Heister, just released from the signal corps after two years, will direct Gary Cooper's picture, "The American Cowboy."

There are some dillies in the dialog, too, and you may be surprised to learn that one of the three authors is James M. Cain, the hard-boiled gent who wrote "The Postman Always Rings Twice."

Household Forum

By Louise Borge

Mrs. Bill A., Chicago.—To sharpen scissors I open them and draw cutting edges back and forth on a piece of glass, or the neck of a bottle. To cut sandpaper with scissors will sharpen them, too.

Emily W., Cairo, Ill.—To clean a greasy frying pan in the quickest possible time, put a little boiling water into pan and add a teaspoon of washing soda. Two minutes of boiling and the "cleaning" is easy.

Kilmer A., Bay City, Mich.—To keep sticky fruits such as dates, figs, etc., from sticking to food chopper, I put a few drops of lemon juice into chopper before grinding. This also makes chopper easier to clean and some food is saved, too.

Now—Please—Your Ideal

Looking Quite a Way Ahead

Warners have bought 15 acres on top of Hollywood Hills for a television studio, which they figure it will take five years to build and equip. . . . Zachary Scott may be leading man opposite Joan Crawford in "Mildred Pierce." . . . Finky Lee will play M. C. of a night club in "Earl Carroll's Vanities" at Republic, which Joe Santley directs. Finky's last screen appearance was in "Lady of Burlesque" with Barbara Stanwyck. . . . Ann Dvorak and Blinnie Barnes are being tested for "Spanish Main," in which Maureen O'Hara and Paul Henreid star. Incidentally, Ann has sold her ranch in Encino; now lives next door to the Fred MacMurrays. . . . Everett Riskin, who shaved "Action in the Living Room" (which Metro purchased months ago) because he felt that quick changes in the war already had dated it, now has a new twist on it; and he's once more preparing it, with Greer Garson in mind.

Getting Ready for Notable Picture

Arthur Ripley and a camera crew are shooting background stuff at the University of North Carolina for Thomas Wolfe's "Look Homeward, Angel." It was Speed McCune, now somewhere in France, who introduced Ripley to Thomas Wolfe and this great American story. In a letter recently Spec asked Ripley for old phone numbers that he might have left over from the last war. Guess he wants to be mothered—or daughtered! . . . At Republic, on "A Song for Miss Julie" set, are Roger Clark, who's directly descended from Capt. William Clark of famed Lewis and Clark expedition, which opened up the northwest country, and Margaret Early, who claims Confederate Gen. Jubal Early as a great-granduncle. She plays opposite Roger.

One Woman Dog—That's Maisie's Scottie

Ann Sothern's Scottie, Doonle, played in "Maisie Goes to Reno." He was so cute that the producer of "Without Love" wanted him for that picture, too. So the dog was brought into a room where Katharine Hepburn and Lucille Ball were seated and promptly went over and tried to bite Hepburn. Then it came out that Doonle likes no woman other than his mistress—so he lost the part. . . . Barbara Stanwyck hoped she'd all recovered from her tonsilectomy so she could go to Chicago with I. A. Bob Taylor, but the doctors discovered that she had to take special shots before she could have an operation to build up her blood count. Barbara doesn't know what picture she'll do next, but she expects to do it at Warners. . . . Phyllis Thaxter and Capt. James Anderson Jr. have had unexpected meetings in three different cities—Chicago, New York, and here. Since they announced their engagement he's made three trips overseas but never stays anywhere long enough for them to tie the knot.

Is There Strength in Union?

Wally Brown and Alan Carney leave Saturday for personal appearances over the country. Both are old vaudeville performers who never made more than $750 per week. As a team they'll get $5,000. . . . Johnny Strong, attendant at NBC parking lot, has been signed by R. K. O. . . . Nice to know that John Murray Anderson is completely recovered from his recent illness and has begun active work on Olsen and Johnson's "Laffing Beauty." He was responsible for that water ballet in "Bathing Beauty." . . . Paramount finally has broken down and is giving Edith Head an elegant new set of offices.

STATE APPROVES CHARITY RACING WEEK

500 ATTEND 1ST PIN CLASS OF PROF. NED DAY

Tribune School Will Resume Today.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.
 Prof. Ned Day, the tennis master who holds the All-Star individual match game bowling championship, yesterday demonstrated to a class of more than 500 that he is as gifted at teaching the A B C's of the sport as he is in picking off spares and strikes.

Yesterday afternoon, the brisk young Badger who is sometimes identified as Mr. Bowling, spent three hours in acquainting beginners with the fundamentals of the game at the Bryn Mawr Recreation, the south side plant operated by Charles Schaefer, Bill Wightman, and Al Engelman.

Last night Day joined with Bud Wright of the Meister Braus, city and Classic league champions, in an exhibition doubles match against Paul Krumke and Joe Sinks, also of the Meisters, before a crowd of 3,500 which jammed the establishment. Krumke and Sinks shot 1300 to 1060 for Day and Wright, Krumke turning in a sparkling 704 series, including games of 243 and 257. Their scores:

Sinks	188	302	306	309
Krumke	264	357	245	764
Day	309	409	440	1300
Wright	173	173	208	550
	152	185	170	510
	357	338	375	1060

This afternoon classes will be resumed with Day leading discussions and giving further instruction at the same establishment in a session which will begin at 2 o'clock and last until approximately 5 o'clock.

Tonight Ned and Bud will bowl another doubles exhibition match, this time against the remaining members of the Meister Braus, Capt. Bill Hargrove and Harry Lippe.

Bryn Mawr also will be the scene of the third session of the school tomorrow. There is no admission charged for Day's lessons. The afternoon classes will open shortly after 2 o'clock, when they will at the rest of the teaching programs, to be conducted through the city.

Teaches All Over City.
 Walter Wentz of Hyde Park Recreation, 5123 S. Lake Park av., where Day will ring his teacher's bell on Oct. 21, is picking his match play candidate thru a sweepstakes which he will hold tomorrow night.

The schedule for the remainder of the free school conducted by Day and THE TRIBUNE follows:
 Today and tomorrow—Bryn Mawr Recreation, 5123 S. Lake Park av.
 Oct. 17—Brynolite, Sheridan st. and Montross av.
 Oct. 18, 20—Bowling Lane, 5231 Broadway st.
 Oct. 19, 20, 22—Stevens' Recreation, 307 E. 79th st.
 Oct. 21—Hyde Park Recreation, 5123 S. Lake Park av.
 Oct. 24, 26, 28—Park Manor Bowling center, 160 E. 72nd st.
 Nov. 1—Milo Winner Recreation, 923 W. 32nd st.

In addition to the above schedule, five open dates are available for proprietors interested in entertaining the school. These are Oct. 23, 27, 30, 31, and Nov. 1. Any proprietor who wishes to hold the school should call Mort Luby, Day's manager, at Wabash 0470.

Stresses Proper Equipment.
 Yesterday Day emphasized four of bowling's fundamentals. He stressed proper equipment (ball and shoes) as the No. 1 factor for the beginner. His second angle was footwork, which he considers 75 per cent of the sport, and while granting that certain bowlers use only three steps in going to the line, he recommends four, even five for the average bowler. The third phase, delivery and follow thru, can be likened to the swing and follow thru in golf.

Day and Krumke, runner-up to Ned in the All-Star tournament last year, will meet in a challenge match for the championship prior to the opening of the big show, which will be held at the Auditorium Service Men's center from Dec. 2, thru 10.

IT'S ELEMENTARY, SAYS THE TEACHER

It's nothing more than a combination of mathematics, straight and curved lines and application of instructions, says Prof. Ned Day, national singles bowling champion, as he opened his Tribune sponsored free classes yesterday in Bryn Mawr Recreation, 2015 E. 71st st., before a large and attentive group. Day is giving a private talk to (left to right) Mrs. Ralph Muesch, 6854 Harper av.; Mrs. John Bishop, 8424 Ingleside av.; Jacqueline Guilbert, 1956 E. 73d pl., and Mrs. Clarence Drebing, 8825 Harper av.

THOMPSON PICKS HAWKS LINEUP FOR FIRST GAME

Hibbing, Minn., Oct. 12 (Special).—Manager Paul Thompson today named the Chicago Blackhawks who will open the season Oct. 29 against Toronto in the Stadium.

Expect Bill and Joe Sunday.
 Moslenko and Cooper have been awaiting their Canadian passports for over a week. They are expected to report to Thompson Sunday.

Of 14 players named only four—Brayshaw, Fraser, Bretto, and Horek—will be new to Hawk fans. Brayshaw and Fraser have been playing with high class amateur organizations for the last five seasons in British Columbia. Horek, acquired by draft from the Cleveland Barons, led the scorers of the American league last season with 34 points. Bretto, who weighs 240, played four seasons with St. Paul of the American association.

Twenty year old Doug Stevenson will be carried as sub goalie. The youngster has shown a lot of improvement since he was a member of the Hawks in 1942-43.

Johnson is Utility Man.
 Virgil Johnson will be the fifth defense man. If necessary he can take a turn at left wing.

Fido Purpur was named by Thompson for the extra forward line the Hawks intend to carry through the season and Thompson intimated that the next two weeks might see Joe Papile winning out over the veteran right wing.

For the center spot on the fourth string, George Beach, 17 years old, of Regina and Ed Shamlock, 27, of Edmonton, Alta., have the edge. Seventeen year old Stan Craig of Winnipeg and Gordon Mirtle, 18, of Saskatoon, Sask., look best for the left wing assignment.

Army Releases Lowrey; He'll Return to Cubs

Harry (Peanut) Lowrey, Cub outfielder who went into service after the 1943 season, yesterday notified Vice President Jim Gallagher that he had received a medical discharge from the army and had returned to his home in California. The midwest fly chaser had been stationed at Fort Custer, Mich.

Robinson-Jannazzo Boat Tops Boston Card Tonight

Boston, Mass., Oct. 12 (P).—Harlem's Ray Robinson, welterweight recently released from the army, will meet Izzy Jannazzo of Brooklyn tomorrow night in a 10 round feature bout in the Boston Garden.

BOSTON AWAITS FIRST VIEW OF FIGHTING IRISH

40,000 Will See Duel with Dartmouth.

BY WILFRID SMITH.
 (Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
 Boston, Mass., Oct. 12.—Forty thousand spectators, the capacity of Fenway park, will see Notre Dame's undefeated football team play Dartmouth here Saturday afternoon. Twice that number would attend if facilities were available. Notre Dame's first appearance in Boston has created as much enthusiasm as it is possible as the long standing rivalry Notre Dame and Army annually produce in New York.

The standing room sign went up long since on Fenway park to the joy of the speculators, who have doubled and trebled list prices despite Dartmouth's record of a 6 to 6 tie with Holy Cross and a 20 to 6 defeat last Saturday by Pennsylvania. Boston Irish, and others, too, wish to see the nation's ranking eleven as it defends its 1943 collegiate championship.

Vanguard Is Due Today.
 The first contingent of Notre Dame's squad of 35 players will arrive tomorrow morning. The players will be quartered in the Kenmore hotel and will drill briefly in Fenway park. The navy trainees, following the schedule adopted for the opening game in Pittsburgh, will reach this city on the day of the game.

Notre Dame's first invasion of the Hub holds particular interest for those who support the Quakers since Ed McKeever, pro tem director of the Irish for Lt. Frank Leahy, served with Leahy in 1940 when B. C. was undefeated and victor in the post-season Sugar bowl game in Pasadena. The Boston college folks will cheer for Notre Dame.

Brown Won't Concede Game.
 The ties of loyalty are broken for a day for Earl Brown, Dartmouth's coach, who starred a decade ago at end in football and as a guard in basketball for the Irish. Brown has not conceded defeat Saturday, despite the unanimous forecast of Boston newspaper men. Indeed, he insists Dartmouth now is better prepared than it was for earlier games, despite the continued absence of Ed Glingrich, outstanding runner and kicker, who still is in the college hospital in Hanover, N. H., recuperating from pneumonia.

Dartmouth's young men, several of them navy trainees, loosed an attack which crossed Penn's goal early last week, but fell before the Quakers' second half rally. Even so, Brown points out, the difference between these Ivy league rivals is not adequately expressed by the score.

FILLEY TO START

Notre Dame, Ind., Oct. 12 (Special).—Capt. Pat Filley, who received a medical discharge from the marine corps last week, will appear in the Notre Dame starting lineup for the first time this season when the Irish face Dartmouth Saturday afternoon in Boston.

Head Coach Ed McKeever said before leaving this afternoon with the Calumet members of the squad that Filley's assignment to his old left guard job will be the only change in the starting lineup.

SEGURA TO PLAY TALBERT IN NET TOURNAMENT FINAL

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 12 (P).—Pancho Segura, Ecuador, defeated Armando Vega, 6-1, 6-3, 6-3, and Billy Talbert, Indianapolis, Ind., beat Vega's brother, Rolando, 6-2, 6-1, 6-1, to gain the final round of the Pan-American tennis tournament today.

Margaret Osbourne, San Francisco, teamed with Talbert to defeat Louise Brough, Beverly Hills, Calif., and Ignacio de la Borbolla, Mexico City, 7-5, 6-0, in the mixed doubles semi-finals and will face in the final Armando Vega and Mary Arnold, Los Angeles, who eliminated Segura and Pauline Betz, Los Angeles, defending champions, 5-7, 6-4, 8-6, in a decided upset.

Illinois Ducks Have One More Day of Peace, Then—Boom!

BY BOB BECKER.
 Thousands of Illinois duck and coot hunters who are so fortunate as to have shotgun shells will be heading for the Illinois river and Grass lake tonight to open the 1944 migratory waterfowl season tomorrow morning. Shooting starts 30 minutes before sunrise and continues each day of the season until sunset. Many wardens will be at Grass lake in the morning to keep their eyes on the annual battle against the mudhens. Usually more than 1,000 shooters wham away at the birds up there, but the shell shortage may reduce the bombardment somewhat this year.

There are more than twice as many ducks in the Illinois river valley now as were down there last year for the opening date. However, the distribution is very spotty. Here are figures.

The Illinois natural history survey, which recently finished a census of the Illinois river duck population, furnished this writer with the following last minute news on the way the birds are distributed in the bottomlands:

There are approximately 125,000 ducks in the valley compared to 55,000 last year on opening day, but more than 60,000, or almost one-half of the total population are concentrated on and near Clear lake where 1,000 acres of millet, nutgrass, smartweed, and pigweed have brought the birds in. There are 40,000 pintails in the 60,000, plus almost 20,000 mallards, 2,000 teal, and 1,800 ruddy ducks.

Remember Bag Restrictions.
 Very few mallards are scattered thru the valley. Between Peoria and Hennepin there are about 16,000 pintails or sprigs. A large flock of these birds is on Goose pond in the upper part of the river (near Hennepin). On the Spauldier free duck hunting ground is a concentration of about 1,500 ruddy ducks. Clear lake (the state's first supervised free duck hunting area) did have about 1,000 widgeon and 800 pintails but part of this concentration has left the lake.

The first migration wave of open water ducks has hit the valley so there are about 2,000 ringnecked ducks, 5,000 ruddy ducks and some bluebills on hand for opening day. Hunters are reminded that only one wood duck may be shot per day and only one is allowable in possession at any time. The bag limit is 10 per day on teal, bluebills, ruddies, gadwalls, and similar species, but in addition to that limit one may take an additional five mallards, widgeon, or pintails.

TRIBUNE WILL CONDUCT MEET FROM NOV. 6-11

Sportsman's Park Donates Revenue.

BY ARCH WARD.
 Application of Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., to conduct a week of charity horse racing at Sportsman's Park after the close of the regular season was approved yesterday in an opinion rendered by Atty. Gen. George F. Barrett to the Illinois racing board.

The charity program, which will be conducted by the National Jockey club, operators of Sportsman's Park, as agent for Chicago Tribune Charities, will be held from Nov. 6 to Nov. 11, inclusive.

Cooperation Brings Success.
 This will be the third meeting at Sportsman's Park under the auspices of Chicago Tribune Charities. The first was after the end of the 1942 season. It cleared $133,736. The second charity meeting was a pre-season event in 1943 and netted $52,870. It was operated in the spring instead of the fall because of the uncertainties attending the continuance of sports activities during the war.

The success of the charity programs at Sportsman's Park has been due largely to the enthusiastic cooperation of John L. Keeshin, president of the National Jockey club, the Illinois racing board, Gov. Dwight Green, and Atty. Gen. Barrett.

Meeting Nets $400,000.
 This will be the second 1944 charity racing meet conducted by Chicago Tribune Charities. The first, held at Washington Park in July, earned $400,000 for Chicago's needy and for war relief agencies. This revenue, as well as earnings from Golden Gloves and the Chicagoand Music Festival, will be distributed within the next week.

The Washington Park program was one of the greatest cooperative efforts in racing history. Each of Chicago's five tracks—Lincoln Field, Hawthorne, Arlington, Washington, and Sportsman's—yielded a day of their regularly allotted dates to make up the five day schedule. The event was supported so robustly that state records for mutual wagering were broken twice during the program.

Deduct Only Necessary Expense.
 The state will receive its daily license fee and its share of the mutual wagering during the charity meeting at Sportsman's Park. The track will offer its normal purses. Only actual operating expenses will be deducted from the receipts. There will be no monetary compensation for officials of the plant, and there will be no assessments for insurance, depreciation of property, and other items ordinarily charged against a meeting. All net revenue will be donated to Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.

Mr. Keeshin predicts that the 1944 meeting will be the most successful of the three charity ventures at his track. He bases the forecast on the increase in revenue at Sportsman's spring meeting over the 1943 figure. The average mutual handle last spring was $605,660. In 1943, the total was $587,750.

Sportsman's regular fall meeting will open next Wednesday and continue thru Nov. 4.

Barrett Cites Need.
 Atty. Gen. Barrett's letter to Mr. Williams follows:
 "I have your communication of Sept. 28, 1944, requesting my opinion as to whether or not the Illinois racing board can authorize the National Jockey club, operators of Sportsman's Park Race Track, to conduct a week of charity racing as the agent for Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., for the period from Nov. 6 to Nov. 11, 1944, both inclusive, in accordance with an agreement entered into between them, whereby all of the net proceeds from this week of racing will be used by the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., for charitable purposes."

"With our nation at war, there is an increasing need for charitable funds to assist needy persons and especially to aid in the rehabilitation and readjustment of returning veterans and their dependents. Every effort should be made to assist worthy charitable organizations in order that they may continue to carry out their splendid charitable purposes during these war times when increasing demands have been made upon them."

Fays Tribune Compliment.
 "Col. Robert R. McCormick and Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., are entitled to the sincere gratitude and wholehearted commendation of the entire community for the magnificent results of their many activities on behalf of recognized charities. Arch Ward, who has been directing these of these activities, not only has been resourceful but also has been untiring in his efforts. ILLINOIS NAMES EIGHT FRUSH TO OPEN WITH IOWA

Bill Heiss Moved from Full to Center.

Champaign, Ill., Oct. 12 (Special).—Eight freshmen will start Saturday's game against Iowa for the Illinois. They are: John Orr and Lee Agass, ends; Don Janssen and Lee Bingham, tackles; Chuck Smith, guard; Paul Patterson and Buddy Young, half backs; and Jerry Cies, full back. Sophomores Ralph Seppala, guard, and Bill Heiss, center, and Senor Don Greenwood, quarter back, complete the lineup. Heiss, a converted full back, is new to the center position this week. He will be supported by Alex Prokopis, who has played the spot three weeks.

REJOINS IOWA SQUAD.
Iowa City, Ia., Oct. 12 (Special).—Bob Ireland, Hawkeye right guard, who quit Coach Slop Madigan's Iowa football team Tuesday after a squabble with a teammate, was back in uniform today after apologizing to Madigan and the squad and will start in the game with Illinois Saturday night at left guard. Paul Fagerlin, Waterloo, Ia., ind. will start at the right guard spot.

SEAHAWKS FEAR PASSER.
Iowa City, Ia., Oct. 12 (Special).—For the second straight day, the Iowa Seahawk football team specialized on their pass defense. Coach Jack Meagher also threw in a good share of fast offensive and defensive dummy scrimmages. Comdr. Meagher is taking no chances in case Purdue line men can solve the running attack of the fast Seahawks backs and plans on using an aerial combination which can produce yardage if the ground gainers are stopped.

ISABEL HAS NEW ROOTER.
Lafayette, Ind., Oct. 12 (Special).—Cecil Isabel, Purdue's head football coach, had a new rooter this afternoon as he sent the Rollermakers thru their last hard drill in preparation for the Dad-day battle with Iowa Seahawks Saturday.

The Rollermaker coach was celebrating the birth this morning of a second daughter, yet unnamed. The Isabels already have one daughter, Cecily Ann, who is 3 years old.

CHANGES HOOSTER LINEUP.
Bloomington, Ind., Oct. 12 (Special).—Coach Bob McMillin will present an almost entirely new line-up when the Indiana University football team meets the Nebraska Cornhuskers here Saturday.

J. C. Coffey will get his first starting assignment of the year at left guard, with John Cannady, regular quarter back, shifted to center to relieve the injured John Taverne. Ben Raymond, clever passer, suffered a dislocated shoulder in practice yesterday and may be out for a month. Del Russell, freshman, is being worked at Raymond's left half back spot.

BIERMAN REPORTS.
Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 12 (Special).—Lt. Col. Bernie Bierman produced a surprise today when he reached the University of Minnesota three days earlier than expected and looked over the Gopher football squad as it practiced for Saturday's game with Missouri here.

Bierman, arriving home after having been retired from the marine corps in which he had served since soon after Pearl Harbor, went into a huddle with Dr. George Hauser, his successor as head coach. Hauser will complete the season as head coach, with Bierman listed as an advisory coach.

City League Preps Offer Five Contests
The north, west, and central sections of the City High school football circuit each will present one league game this afternoon, while tonight two south section games are scheduled in Shewbridge field in a prelude to tomorrow's heavy schedule.

Harrison will meet Austin in Key Branch stadium in a game that might well decide the west section championship. Harrison has overpowered Foreman and Kelynn Park and Austin routed Tuley, which being led by Crane, Crane, which also figures in the west section race, plays Foreman tomorrow.

Senn to Play Taft.
Senn, after crushing Roosevelt, 59 to 0, meets Taft in a north section game in Winnebago park. Taft has looked good since last week's 28 to 6, and St. John's Military academy, 13 to 6, on successive weekends.

Gage Park and Du Sable Play in the Yates av. stadium in the central section game. In last week's league contest, Gage Park lost to Kelly, 6 to 0, and Du Sable fell before Tilden, 28 to 7.

WILSON MAKES UP NOW FOR DAYS HE SAT OUT GAME

BY EDWARD FRELL.
Capt. George Wilson is getting more favorable attention as a member of a losing Chicago Bear team than he did when the Wrigley field residents were winning games with monotonous regularity. Those were the days when Bear talent spilled over on the bench and many a player virtually sat out his career. One of the sitters was Wilson, but he's making up for it now. The captain will play most of Sunday's game in Wrigley field against the Cardinals, a game in which, incidentally, the odds makers have established the Bears as 14 point favorites.

At Green Bay, last month, Wilson made a catch while the Packers' George Trafton declared was the most spectacular he had ever seen. Big George has seen most of the National league's great pass receivers, of which the top one is the Packers' own Don Hutson. Don was right there when Wilson made the catch, too.

Just Like an Outfielder.
It came while the Bears were rallying after getting behind, 23 to 0. Sid Luckman pitched the ball into the end zone. Wilson leaped, stuck up his right hand like an outfielder and snared the ball. Last Trafton continue it.

"That was a neat bit of work. But just as George made the catch, Hutson crashed into him and Wilson turned a complete flip. I looked for the ball to start bouncing but the fellow, despite the jar, still was holding it in his big mitt after he landed."

CAR SHORTAGES HAMPER RAILS, SHIPERS TOLD

Betts Terms Next 30 Days Critical.

Boost Demurrage

Washington, D. C., Oct. 12 (AP).—The office of defense transportation today ordered heavy demurrage charges applied to freight cars held for loading or unloading beyond a fourth day to make it "too expensive to be profitable to hold a car for storage beyond a reasonable time."

Acting thru the interstate commerce commission, DOT directed that present demurrage charges after customary free time be made $2.20 per car per day for the first two days, $5.50 for the third, $11 for the fourth, and $16.50 per car per day thereafter.

A serious, but not disastrous, shortage of freight cars, especially box cars, is hampering the movement of critical goods in the mid-west area, L. M. Betts, manager of the railroad relations section of the Association of American Railroads, said yesterday. However, he asserted the situation should be cleared up probably within 30 days.

Speaking at a meeting of the Mid-West Shippers' Advisory board in the Palmer House, Betts said the railroads have 10,000 fewer serviceable box cars than a year ago to handle the record crops of several main farm products.

One of the solutions to the problem will be to speed the return of empty cars to this area from the eastern seaboard, he explained. Between 500 and 700 empty cars have been going there since the summer, but returns have dropped to about 250 to 300 daily. Shortage of labor to unload cars was said to have slowed their movement.

Brig. Gen. W. J. Williamson, chief of the traffic control division of the army service forces, told the group that the stepped up operations against the Japanese while the European campaign was in full swing may result in maximum transportation demands, both east and west.

He said that a sudden end of the European war would not necessarily bring relief to the railroads, but would mean turning the tide of traffic toward the Pacific.

Strain to Increase.
"The strain will be increased on the transcontinental lines when things get going in the Pacific," Gen. Williamson predicted.

Explaining the necessity for cutting down the detention time of freight cars in the present critical shipping period, he said:

"The office of defense transportation has pointed out that rail car loadings currently are exceeding 1943 levels, rail hauls are growing longer, heavier loadings are carried per car, and the ton mile total is moving impressively upward."

A total of 174,434 more cars will be needed by the army air forces and the army service forces in the last quarter of this year, and the first quarter next year than a year earlier.

Johnston Lashes Followers
of Alien Ideological Debris

Eric A. Johnston, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, lashed last night against those Americans who seek "hope in foreign ideologies and ignore the opportunities at home."

A cheering audience of 1,000 applauded his remarks. Johnston spoke at a dinner at the Drake Hotel marking the 50th anniversary of the founding of the Ingersoll Steel & Disc division of the Borg-Warner corporation. Roy C. Ingersoll, president of the division, and son, S. A. Ingersoll, the founder, presided.

Reed Future Lies in Free Nation.
"There are those among us who search around in the ideological debris of other countries for new and magic formulas," Johnston said. "They should be taught that they had better search here at home in a free and prosperous America, in which the power is firmly held in the hands of the people, and not given to some super-government, or self-perpetuating bureaucracy."

They should be taught that such an America will always throw its weight on the side of free seas, free skies, and free people. We should never forget that in the realm of politics, social and economic ideas, America is in the exporting—not the importing—business."

To Be Isle of Democracy.
Johnston warned against a worldwide tendency toward collectivism, and said that the United States in the post-war era would stand as an island of democracy in the world. The general trend, he said, is toward "more state control and less opportunity for the individual."

Economically, Johnston spoke against a policy in recent years of "producing less for more money."

LABOR TO TAKE WPA EXTRACTS BOOST TO F.D.R.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 12 (AP).—Labor members of the war labor board laid plans today to take directly to President Roosevelt recommendations for an immediate revision of the Little Steel formula to permit upward boosts in wages.

They agreed on this procedure, but R. J. Thomas, president of the CIO United Automobile Workers, said they were trying to develop a definite plan before asking a White House conference.

Wage Peg to Remain.
Information came from a principal White House adviser, however, that the administration would not risk a change in basic wage policy until victory in Europe is clearly in sight and production cutbacks relieve some of the pressure for man power.

Public members of the WLB went into conference to draft a proposed factual report to the President with recommendations. It was decided to recess discussions of the issue of wages versus living costs until after the war.

Debate will center on the yardsticks to be used in determining whether living costs have outrun wages and if so, how much. Principals in the controversy cannot agree on how much the cost of living has increased.

Even more controversial is the measurement of wages; that is, whether the yardstick should be base rates, straight time earnings which include incentive payments and merit increases, or gross earnings which include income from long work week and overtime.

Markets to Reopen
Principal security and commodity exchanges and banks, closed yesterday in observance of Columbus day, will reopen today.

People and Events
Frank K. Savage, general superintendent of the C. G. Conn company, Elkhart, Ind., will speak on electroforming at a joint meeting of the Electrochemical society and American Electroplaters' society tomorrow in the Atlantic hotel.

Sen. Murray (D., Mont.), chairman of the senate small business committee, will discuss the future of the small brewer at a war time conference of the Small Brewers committee, opening in the Edgewater Beach hotel Sunday.

The Chicago Retail Controllers' association will hold its first meeting of the season Tuesday in the Electric club.

The annual meeting of the Institute of Home Office Underwriters will be held in the Edgewater Beach hotel Nov. 2 to 4.

LABOR TO TAKE WPA EXTRACTS BOOST TO F.D.R.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 12 (AP).—Labor members of the war labor board laid plans today to take directly to President Roosevelt recommendations for an immediate revision of the Little Steel formula to permit upward boosts in wages.

They agreed on this procedure, but R. J. Thomas, president of the CIO United Automobile Workers, said they were trying to develop a definite plan before asking a White House conference.

Wage Peg to Remain.
Information came from a principal White House adviser, however, that the administration would not risk a change in basic wage policy until victory in Europe is clearly in sight and production cutbacks relieve some of the pressure for man power.

Public members of the WLB went into conference to draft a proposed factual report to the President with recommendations. It was decided to recess discussions of the issue of wages versus living costs until after the war.

Debate will center on the yardsticks to be used in determining whether living costs have outrun wages and if so, how much. Principals in the controversy cannot agree on how much the cost of living has increased.

Even more controversial is the measurement of wages; that is, whether the yardstick should be base rates, straight time earnings which include incentive payments and merit increases, or gross earnings which include income from long work week and overtime.

Johnston Lashes Followers
of Alien Ideological Debris

Eric A. Johnston, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, lashed last night against those Americans who seek "hope in foreign ideologies and ignore the opportunities at home."

A cheering audience of 1,000 applauded his remarks. Johnston spoke at a dinner at the Drake Hotel marking the 50th anniversary of the founding of the Ingersoll Steel & Disc division of the Borg-Warner corporation. Roy C. Ingersoll, president of the division, and son, S. A. Ingersoll, the founder, presided.

Reed Future Lies in Free Nation.
"There are those among us who search around in the ideological debris of other countries for new and magic formulas," Johnston said. "They should be taught that they had better search here at home in a free and prosperous America, in which the power is firmly held in the hands of the people, and not given to some super-government, or self-perpetuating bureaucracy."

They should be taught that such an America will always throw its weight on the side of free seas, free skies, and free people. We should never forget that in the realm of politics, social and economic ideas, America is in the exporting—not the importing—business."

To Be Isle of Democracy.
Johnston warned against a worldwide tendency toward collectivism, and said that the United States in the post-war era would stand as an island of democracy in the world. The general trend, he said, is toward "more state control and less opportunity for the individual."

Economically, Johnston spoke against a policy in recent years of "producing less for more money."

Johnston said that the future of the world lies in the hands of the people, and that the United States must stand as an island of democracy in the world.
